Dr. R. R. Paty Accepts Post as Chancellor Of University System

By CLARK HOWELL, JR.

Dr. Raymond R. Paty, President of the University of Alabama, has accepted the post of Chancellor for the University System of Georgia, which controls the University of Georgia, Georgia Tech and 14 other State colleges, Marion Smith, Chairman of the Board of Regents for the University System, announced yesterday.

METEORS FALL

Comet Flirts With Earth

The meteors were falling last night. In fact, at the peak, it was a shower. Three and four were visible in the sky at one time. The shooting meteors were bits of dust and gases from the tail of the comet Giacobini-Zinner, which was flitting with the world, coming within 130,000 miles of this planet. They will again be visible to night, provided the weather is clear.

Indictment In Peonage Case Found

By MARJORY SMITH

A Federal Grand Jury here has indicted Roswell Pierce Biggers, 60-year-old Conyers farmer, on 19 counts of peonage, charging that he violated a section of the United States Criminal Code which prohibits slavery when he allegedly held five Negroes in involuntary servitude on his 3,000-acre farm.

The farmer, arrested by FBI agents on his farm near Conyers Aug. 27, has been free on $4,000 bond since his arraignment before U. S. Commissioner David J. Meyers here a few hours after his arrest.

U. S. District Attorney M. Neil Andrews said Federal officials "expected to try the case during the October term of court" and "probably would get to it within two weeks."

The U. S. District Court is now in session here, with Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood presiding. The court calendar notes that today and Monday criminal cases upon which indictments have been returned by the Grand Jury may be called for arraignment before Judge Underwood.

Biggers' indictment lists Negro workers whom he allegedly held in condition of peonage as: Bobby Glenn, also known as Bobby Rakestraw; Lester Banks, J. C. Banks, Booker T. Johnson and Felman Jackson.

Addresses of the Negroes, who were freed following Biggers' arrest, were not available. A Federal official said all were working in Atlanta.

Biggers is charged with having the workers in question arrested on warrants charging indebtedness to him, and then forcing the Negroes, against their wills, to work out the debts.

The indictment alleges Biggers had three workers arrested while they were working for other individuals or organizations near Atlanta.

'Vicious Intimidation,' Says Mankin As Party Picks Davis, Waves Club

Constitution Staff Photos—Pete Roton

DEBATE MRS. MANKIN'S QUALIFICATIONS— In heated debate of Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin's right to run as a co-nominee of the Democratic Party in the Nov. 5 general election, Mrs. Mankin and her attorney, Houston White, and Judge James C. Davis, right, with whom Mrs. Mankin was to run on the ballot, are shown before the State Democratic Convention's Contest Committee, which later ruled Judge Davis the sole nominee.

Convention Pledges Negro Voting Is Ended in Democratic Primaries

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Staff Writer

MACON, Sept. 9.—The State Democratic Convention, meeting here to nominate Eugene Talmadge for his fourth gubernatorial term, took every step it could think of to end Negro voting in Georgia primaries, and then made ready to take any more it might find necessary.

Just before it adjourned, the Convention decided to make provision for reconvening any time necessary between now and 1950, the duration of Talmadge's tenure. The unprecedented action of forming itself into a possible permanent organization was regarded as having one meaning: The United States Supreme Court might hand down rulings in the future which would require immediate action on primary regulations to keep Negroes from voting.

For further details of the Convention—the party platform, the Talmadge and Cox addresses and committee appointments—see pages 4 and 5.

This Convention—Talmadge's Convention which cheered loudly his pledge to keep Negroes from ever voting in a primary—will be the one to meet if there is any necessity. The Convention nominated Talmadge, pledged him support in every way, and predicted a great era for Georgia under his guidance.

Talmadge himself was in a Jacksonville hospital, too ill to receive this honor, and his speech was delivered by his son, Herman.

Among the speakers addressing the largest convention in Georgia history was former Gov. Rivers, who opposed Talmadge in the recent primary.

An ovation was given Rivers when he pledged his own support to the new Talmadge Administration and called upon the other political opponents of Talmadge, including the press, to do likewise.

"Our Democratic mission will not be complete if we return to the arsenal of personal differences, waiting only for an opportunity to renew the feud," Rivers told the cheering crowds. "Any barrage laid down against the Governor, either from within or without the Party, will do the people more harm than it will the target. Every candidate pledged it as his lodestar to support the nominee. I renounce my weapons and pledge my co-operation to the new Administration. While we have been political enemies, Eugene Talmadge and I have long been personal friends."

In nominating Talmadge, Char-

City Meat Inspectors Busiest Ever—Graydon

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

Dr. Stafford Graydon, Chief Sanitarian of the Atlanta Health Department said yesterday that his men are inspecting more meat than ever before in a similar period in the history of the office. At almost the same time, G. R. Hathaway, District Director of the United Packinghouse Workers, CIO, prepared to send telegrams to the Governors of Tennessee and Alabama and to Gov. Arnall, urging investigations to determine whether meat is being hoarded in the Southeast as it has been in other parts of the country.

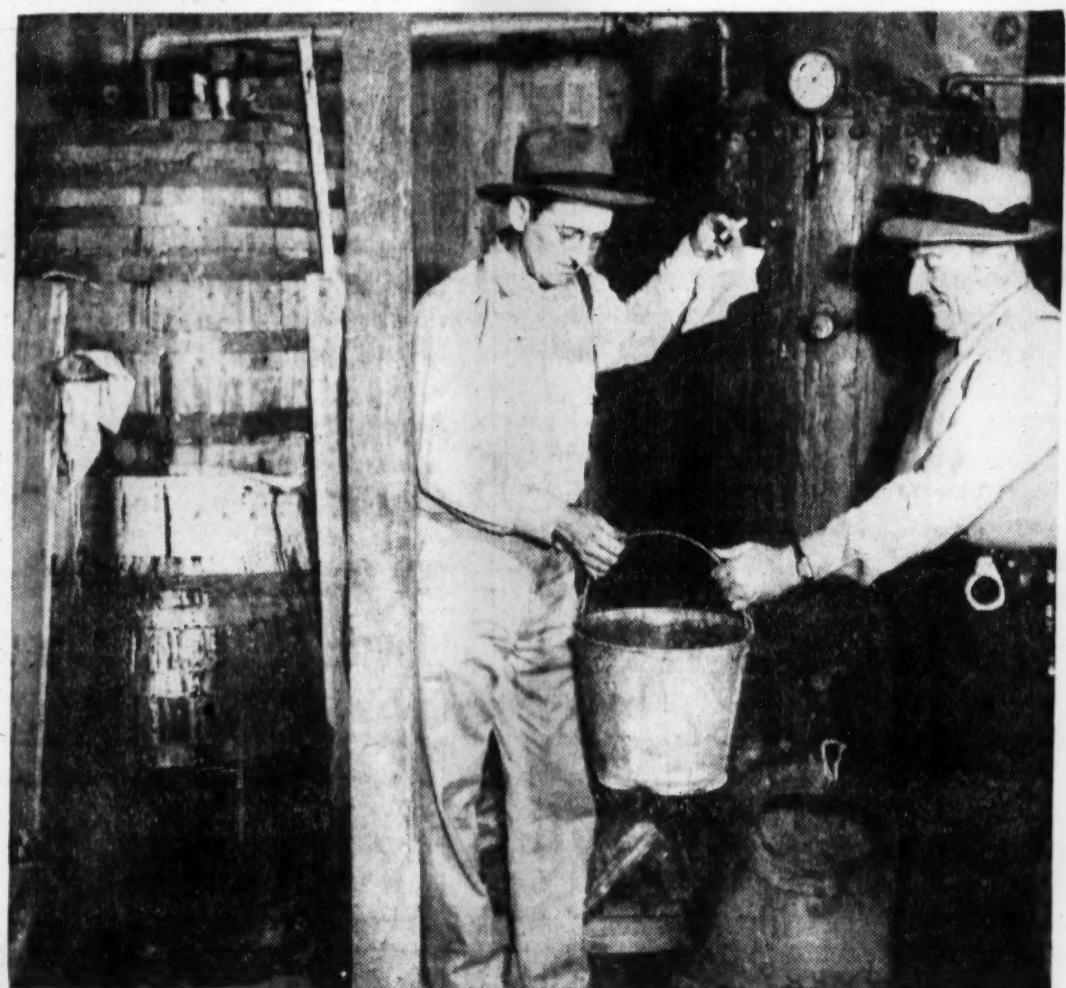

"The people of America are in dire need of meat," Hathaway's telegram declared, "and we know you agree that the health and welfare of the people are more important than profit and speculation."

The health officer did not speculate as to where the inspected meat was going.

His office, together with the Fulton County Health Department, is charged with inspecting meat slaughtered at two abattoirs in Atlanta, the United Butchers' Abattoir and Jack Moore's Slaughter House, both at 1200 Howell Mill Rd., and a third public abattoir in Fairburn. The inspectors are also on call to inspect farm-killed animals which are sold to neighbors or to meat markets.

The farm kill, inspectors said, has increased about two-thirds in the last month or so. Meat thus killed may be sold directly to markets where it is inspected for sale, thus eliminating the distribution charges tacked on the prices of meat from large processing plants. "Butcher shops," said an inspector, "are not too particular about requiring OPA butchering permits when they buy meat from their friends, and it is none of our business, of course."

The animals slaughtered on farms, he speculated, may be the ones which are bulging freezer lockers on Peachtree Road and in East Point, as well as in the RAID STILL AT PALATIAL ATLANTA HOME—Federal Agent W. L. Hutto, left, and Bob Sumner, State Revenue Agent, inspect the steam boiler of a liquor still seized at 471 Collier Rd. last night. J. D. Greenway and Sumner Greenway, who resided at that address, and John Richard Wade, were placed under arrest, according to the agents. The Collier Road home was purchased recently at a cost of $40,000, had its own swimming pool, and was surrounded by palatial homes.

'Banish' Threat Backs Convention's Nominee

By JOHN COURIC
Constitution Staff Writer

Helen Douglas Mankin has accused the State Democratic Convention of resorting to "vicious intimidation" in threatening party banishment to any official who puts her name on a ballot in the Nov. 5 general election.

The Convention, meeting in Macon yesterday, first voted that Judge James C. Davis, of Decatur, was its nominee for Congress from the Fifth District, and passed a resolution purporting to annul the action of the outgoing Democratic Executive Committee and of the Secretary of State in certifying the names of both Mrs. Mankin and Judge Davis for the General Election.

The conventionists backed up their own Contest Committee overwhelmingly in giving their endorsement solely to Judge Davis, and then adopted a resolution by Roy V. Harris, of Augusta, providing that party support and party membership could be denied any Ordinary or the Secretary of State for placing on a ballot the name of a person not endorsed by the Convention.

Of the resolution giving support to Judge Davis, Mankin said, "That is exactly what I needed to assure my election."

"That action leaves Judge Davis the Talmadge candidate and leaves me the Democratic candidate."

But of the banishment resolution, Mrs. Mankin said: "That is very indicative of what the State of Georgia is in for for the next four years under a party primary ruled by those men."

"They are trying to do by intimidation what they know they cannot do by law. That's what the whole State can expect for the next four years."

"It constitutes vicious intimidation."

She also referred to the action as "very amazing, because no convention can change the law of the State. It makes the whole thing ridiculous. It just adds to the comedy of errors."

At Macon, Judge Davis issued a statement calling on all members of the party in the Fifth District to support him as the party nominee.

Fight Upon OPA Gets Wide Aid

By JIM FURNISS

A concerted drive against what is left of the OPA appears under way with labor, management, civic groups and individuals cutting across natural lines of division to put the limping agency out of its misery.

George L. Googe, Southern representative of the AFL, yesterday echoed from Chicago some of the strongly worded sentiment against Government controls which were expressed in a joint meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers and the Associated Industries of Georgia here the day before.

Googe, attending the AFL convention of delegates for the country's 7,100,000 AFL union members, told a Constitution reporter that "it is almost a foregone conclusion the convention will resolve to end all Government control on wages and prices with the exception of rents, and one or two other items."

This statement, Googe pointed out, represents a change in attitude towards the OPA since this Spring when the AFL was stumping for the agency's continuation. He attributed the change in part to the weak-kneed version of OPA Congress passed on to the public this Summer.

In Atlanta, speakers at the AIGNAM conference Monday minced no words in denouncing the OPA. Several representatives of Georgia's leading industries condemned the organization for being everything from a step toward a Com-

Partly Cloudy Today, Warmer Tomorrow

It's going to be partly cloudy, the weatherman predicts, but without much change in temperature in the Atlanta area. Today's high will be 78 degrees, and the low 58 degrees, which is almost no change from yesterday. Tomorrow the mercury is expected to rise slightly to a high of 80 degrees.

Raiders Bag Huge Still At Palatial Home Here

State and Federal revenue agents last night swooped down on a palatial Collier Road residence and smashed one of the most elaborate liquor stills ever uncovered in the city, placing under arrest two residents of the $40,000 home and a "runner" who, they said, was making a delivery.

The still, equipped with modern devices including steam boiler, electric motor and draw fans, which carried off the fumes, was located in a four-room garage apartment in the rear of the beautiful nine-room residence, which had its own private swimming pool.

Those placed under arrest gave their names as J. D. Greenway and Sumner Greenway, both of the 471 Collier Rd. address, and John Richard Wade, who was arrested Tuesday night by State and Federal agents on Northside Drive as he left the still site with a load.

The still had been in operation only a week, the agents said. When they moved in they found only 129 gallons of whisky, but found 3,500 gallons of mash and 276 gallons of syrup. More than half of the two dozen 220-gallon fermenting barrels were filled.

T. L. Carroll, of the State Revenue Department, said the agents moved in on the palatial home at approximately 7:45 p. m. and caught the Greenways and Wade in the act of unloading syrup from a truck. This was Wade's second arrest in as many days.

Carroll said he understood that the home had just been purchased at a cost of $40,000 and that a lien of $30,000 stood against the property. Partially hidden from the road by a large clump of shrubbery and large oaks, the home is one of the most beautiful on Collier Road. The garage apartment's basement had been excavated to make way for the steam boiler, motor and distilling equipment. The garage was nestled in the midst of a clump of trees, also, making it almost invisible from the outside.

Carroll estimated the value of the still at $3,000, exclusive of the garage apartment property.

TITO GOVERNMENT PAYS $150,000 TO U.S. AS INDEMNITY FOR DEATHS OF ARMEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Yugoslavia has turned over $150,000 to the United States as indemnity for the deaths of five American airmen shot down over Yugoslavia Aug. 19, the State Department announced Wednesday.

At the same time the Department made it plain that the United States still hopes to obtain additional indemnities from Yugoslavia for the loss of two transport planes—a claim which Yugoslavia has rejected so far.

The five men were killed when their unarmed Army transport plane was shot down by Yugoslav fighters. Another Army transport had been forced to crash by Yugoslav fighters Aug. 9, but no lives were lost in that incident.

Wednesday's announcement said U. S. Ambassador Richard C. Patterson, Jr., delivered a note to the Yugoslav government in Belgrade Tuesday acknowledging receipt of the $150,000.

In compliance with the Yugoslav government's request, the note said, the United States Government will distribute the sum in five equal payments of $30,000 each to the families of the dead men.

SINGER CAN COOK

Opera Star

By KATHERINE BARNWELL
Miss Eleanor Steber, tall, blonde and glamorous star of the Metropolitan Opera, also can cook.

"If I do say so myself," she says with a wide smile.

Miss Steber stopped in Atlanta, her "favorite city," yesterday for all of four hours. She spent them at the home of her old friends, A. Buckingham Simson, Director of the Oglethorpe University Chorus, and Mrs. Simson.

"I like to cook fancy dishes," said Miss Steber, elaborating on her culinary talents. "When not on concert tour I live with my husband on Long Island. . . . He likes my cooking."

Miss Steber recently signed a new radio contract as soloist. She has been in radio for some six years, but she will begin this season Monday night.

At present, the brilliant young Meisoprano is on a concert tour of 17 cities. She was en route to Savannah for a performance, when she stopped here to see Atlanta friends. The Metropolitan season will open Nov. 11, and Miss Steber will be among the performers.

"My favorite role?" says she. "Oh I love them all. I have no favorites. I throw myself completely into every part I sing. I am specializing in Mozart's operas and I do like to sing 'Violetta' in Verdi's 'La Traviata,' but I have no favorites."

Miss Steber will appear in recital at Preaker Hall, Agnes Scott College, on April 3, 1947, under the auspices of the Decatur Junior Service League.

OPA

munist state to an inefficient, bungling agency which long had outlived its usefulness.

In another instance E. L. Abernethy, Southern representative of the Laundry Workers' International (AFL), covering 10 Southern States, sided with the management of Southern laundries which Tuesday demanded price relief within 10 days.

"I don't know if it's lack of personnel or that they just don't care, but OPA has done the laundry industry a terrible injustice," Abernethy said yesterday. "I'm not sure, though, but OPA's existence may have done some good in holding down runaway prices," he admitted.

The Atlanta Restaurant Association drew nationwide attention with its suit against the OPA for "oppressive and unconstitutional" practices, stirring up a turmoil which restaurant men here claim was instrumental in OPA granting a 15 percent increase in meat meal prices last week.

Predictions from Rep. Helen Douglas Mankin and Sen. Walter F. George, together with remarks from Congressmen throughout the country, that OPA would not live out the next session of Congress also are considered significant.

Mrs. Mankin revealed this week that Paul Porter, OPA Chief, admitted to her that the roll-back order on food prices in restaurants had been "too drastic" and that relief was on the way.

Richard H. Rich, president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, added his voice to the clamor against OPA yesterday, pointing out that OPA, as it is presently constituted, "is doing nothing except keeping down production, and not preventing the increase of prices." He recommended an early end to the agency.

A BANKER'S VIEW
R. E. Gornley, president of the Georgia Bankers' Association, also criticized the OPA, stating he felt that when it lapsed June 30, it could have been done away with and the situation wouldn't have been any worse than it is today. Rich, Gornley and Harry Sommers, a Director and former President of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, however, admitted OPA's necessity during the war.

Sommers, nevertheless, alluded to the present OPA as "top-heavy with incompetence," pointing to a recent OPA investigation of a 48-cent overcharge by a reputable dealer when scores of others on Spring St. are openly charging $200 and more for cars above the ceiling price.

Other organizations recently have scored the OPA, including the Industrial Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, home builders, contractors, and manufacturers, a number of whom previously admitted its need.

CIO BACKS BUREAU
The CIO in Georgia, however, in a meeting Sept. 20-22 of the State Industrial Trade Council at Macon, reaffirmed its stand behind the OPA with a resolution calling for its continuance.

The Council, which represents 70,000 workers in Georgia, took the position that shortages were not sufficiently relieved by production of goods to warrant the lifting of controls.

At the center of all the controversy, the Regional OPA Office here was silent. A Public Relations official pointed out that the OPA appropriations act this June specifically prohibits paying a salary to anyone who prepares or disseminates information for the support of price control.

This law even prevents the OPA from giving out figures on price increases after World War I, since such action might be construed as propagandizing for continued controls.

"The only thing we can do now is sit back and listen to people give us the devil," the official said. Just how concerted a drive exists against the OPA is difficult to determine. An official from the New York headquarters of the NAM, which he said had "led the fight against OPA from the very beginning," denied yesterday that the timing of attacks on the agency by a number of NAM's 16,500 members was directed by the NAM office in New York.

"But our position toward the OPA hasn't changed since last Spring," he insisted.

Cameras and sports goods are now in demand. Constitution Want Ads will command cash for them.

scholastic fraternity, taking his A. B. degree in 1921.

Paty established the Cumberland Mountain School at Crossville, Tenn., the same year and served as its principal until 1929. In the meantime, he received a master's degree from Columbia.

The educator has two honorary doctor of laws degrees, received from Emory in 1938 and Alabama in 1942. Birmingham-Southern conferred a doctor of more humane letters degree in 1943.

He married the former Adelaide Pugh of Augusta, in 1921. They have three daughters.

Dr. Paty has long been prominent in educational and civic affairs. He is a Kiwanian, member of the National Advisory Council of American Relief for France, Board of Visitors at the Air University, Montgomery, Ala., and the Alabama State Advisory Board for the Field Army of American Cancer Society.

The Regents, in their monthly session with all 15 members in attendance, authorized the University of Athens to spend $76,250 of its funds for scientific equipment in the laboratories. The equipment was asked for the increased enrollment.

The Regents also discussed the possible construction of several buildings including an apartment at Middle Georgia College, also the possibility of a teacher education program to encourage more students to enter the teaching profession. The latter program would cost approximately $67,000 annually.

The building program was referred to the Finance Committee with authority to act and the teacher training program was referred to the Committee on Education.

In connection with the appointment of Dr. Paty to the Chancellorship of the University System, Dr. Goodrich White, President of Emory University, said, "I am delighted with the choice and consider it an excellent one."

Dr. Harmon Caldwell, President of the University of Georgia, said, "I have known Dr. Paty for a good many years. He is a fine gentleman and well qualified to administer the affairs of the University system."

Dr. George Sparks, President of the Georgia Evening College, said he considered the choice a good one in view of the fact that Dr. Paty was familiar with the educational affairs of the State, having attended Emory University and having lived in a neighboring State for many years.

Pres. C. E. Brehm, of the University of Tennessee, where Paty once was a student, said, "We think it is a very fine appointment, and we most certainly wish him all the success possible. We feel sure he will do a fine job for Georgia."

NUNS GIVEN RIGHT TO DRIVE CARS

He made the announcement at the dedication of a chapel at the Convent of Bon Secours, an order of nursing nuns. He said they would be provided cars for the visits to the sick.

16 Germans Hanged, British Sources Say

HERFORD, Germany, Oct. 9 (AP)—The British military government said Wednesday that 16 German war criminals, including the commandant and members of the staff of Neuengamme concentration camp had been hanged.

The announcement said 40,000 of the 90,000 persons who passed through the camp near Hamburg had died, 3,000 from unnatural causes and 37,000 from poor health conditions in the camp.

Trial evidence showed that 1,000 Russians were killed with injections, 197 were gassed in their cells and 60 Dutchmen were hanged.

Dr. George Sparks, President of the Georgia Evening College, said he considered the choice a good one in view of the fact that Dr. Paty was familiar with the educational affairs of the State, having attended Emory University and having lived in a neighboring State for many years.

Pres. C. E. Brehm, of the University of Tennessee, where Paty once was a student, said, "We think it is a very fine appointment, and we most certainly wish him all the success possible. We feel sure he will do a fine job for Georgia."

Dr. Harmon Caldwell, President of the University of Georgia, said, "I have known Dr. Paty for a good many years. He is a fine gentleman and well qualified to administer the affairs of the University system."

Dr. George Sparks, President of the Georgia Evening College, said he considered the choice a good one in view of the fact that Dr. Paty was familiar with the educational affairs of the State, having attended Emory University and having lived in a neighboring State for many years.

Pres. C. E. Brehm, of the University of Tennessee, where Paty once was a student, said, "We think it is a very fine appointment, and we most certainly wish him all the success possible. We feel sure he will do a fine job for Georgia."

Industry Members Of WSB Pull Out

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP)—Chairman W. Willard Wirtz, of the Wage Stabilization Board, said Wednesday the two industry members of the Agency had submitted resignations to the White House.

The two, A. Colman Barrett and Earl Cannon, were not immediately available for comment. They previously had sought to resign, effective Aug. 17, but President Truman had prevailed upon them to postpone their departure from the Board.

Wirtz told a reporter he did not know details of the Barrett-Cannon letter of resignation and therefore did not know whether they were speaking for themselves or for industry as a whole in pulling out of the Board.

Austria Wants To Try Von Papen, Von Schirach

VIENNA, Oct. 9 (AP)—Dr. Josef Gerl, Austria's Minister of Justice, sent to the Allied Control Council Wednesday his Government's formal request for extradition of Franz von Papen and Baldur von Schirach for trial here on war crimes charges dating back to the Anschluss.

Von Papen was acquitted last week by the International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg while Von Schirach was given a 20-year prison sentence.

Greek Cabinet Denied Aid From British Troops

LONDON, Oct. 9 (AP)—Minister of State Hector McNeill told the House of Commons Wednesday British troops would not be used to assist the Greek Government in what Laborite W. N. Warbey called "vindictive persecution of his political opponents."

Answering Warbey's question, McNeill said also that "British troops have never been and never will be used for that purpose."

White Primary, County Unit System Defended by the Macon Platform

Constitution State News Service.
MACON, Oct. 9.—The State Democratic Convention, here to nominate Eugene Talmadge for his fourth term as Governor of Georgia, called on members of the party Wednesday to preserve the white primary and protect the county unit system of popular elections in primaries.

Hailing Talmadge as "the answer of red-blooded Georgians to attempted interference with their internal affairs by outside elements in the North," the Convention adopted a platform backing Talmadge on every point of his campaign, and especially on the points of preserving the white primary and preventing Negroes from voting.

The Convention gave Talmadge a green light for the solution of one of the major problems which he will face: more State revenue. The permit was a blanket covering any revenue measure he might find necessary to "provide revenue sufficient to accomplish the purposes stated in this platform."

It has long been recognized that Talmadge probably will have to increase State income if he carries out various pledges regarding schoolteachers' pay, better roads, higher social security benefits, and other measures. Always one to boast of reducing taxes, Talmadge may be in the position of having to increase them, but the Convention gave him the necessary pledge of support.

In the preamble to the platform, the Convention said: "The Democrats of Georgia have assembled in this Convention today in obedience to a clear mandate from the people of Georgia to proclaim and adopt policies which are vital to the future safety and welfare of the State and its institutions."

"Not since the Reconstruction Era immediately following the War Between the States has a more critical situation arisen in Georgia in the opinion of this Convention than that which now exists."

"OUTSIDE AGENCIES"—"Not only is there a determined effort by outside agencies to nullify the unit system in vogue for many years past in our primary elections for the nomination of our State officials and to upset the wishes of our people in their choice for Governor, but these same Communist, undemocratic and subversive elements from beyond our borders have for their own selfish and iniquitous purposes caused the Negroes in our State for the first time in their history as citizens to declare themselves to be Democrats and to register and vote as such in all of our Democratic primaries."

"There was never a crisis, however, in the economic or political affairs of our State or Nation that our great leader was not found and did not arise to meet it."

TALMADGE NOMINATION
"It is not surprising, therefore, but is the natural sequence of human events, that in such a perilous hour the people of Georgia should have turned to Hon. Eugene Talmadge to lead them as their Governor for the fourth time in the last 15 years. He not only was decisively nominated over his two opponents under the unit system but it is a most noteworthy fact that should not be overlooked that he received a clear majority of all the white votes which were cast."

"Mr. Talmadge's election to a fourth term is indeed significant when it is recalled that never before in the long history of this great State has a Georgian ever been honored by being selected as Governor four times. This Convention proclaims this fact to the rest of this Nation and points out that his re-election in 1946 was not the result of any political accident, nor was it occasioned by any hysteria of our people."

"We direct the State Democratic Committee to adopt, promulgate and enforce such rules and regulations as may be necessary to secure these rights and privileges to the Democratic Party in Georgia."

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS
—"We advocate stricter enforcement of the registration laws of Georgia, and urge all the Tax Collectors and County Registrars of the various Counties to permit only those persons who are qualified under the Constitution and laws of Georgia to register and vote in elections held in this State."

"We recommend to the General Assembly consideration of statutory requirements or constitutional

Other points of the platform were:

CONFIDENCE IN TALMADGE
—"We are confident that by his outstanding patriotism, courage, wisdom and independence, he will set a worthy example to his fellow countrymen not only in Georgia but throughout the United States."

The Convention devoted major attention to the county unit system. The full text of the platform on this subject was:

"This Convention unreservedly approves what is known as the County Unit System for the nomination of Democratic candidates for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and Statehouse officers. The plan has been in force in Georgia for many years. It has for its basis constitutional provisions beginning with the first Constitution of the State and reaffirmed and re-approved by the people of the State with the adoption of every other Constitution, including the Constitution of 1945."

"It has for a precedent the provisions of the Constitution of the United States relating to the election of the President of the United States, and the apportionment of United States Senators."

COUNTY UNIT SYSTEM
—"We deplore the belated effort of two disgruntled citizens of this State to overturn in the courts the time-honored and legal County Unit System. They voted in the primary under the County Unit Plan, thereby taking their chances of the selection of their candidate. When their candidate was defeated, they should, in all good faith, morals, equity and right thinking, be estopped from complaining and from endeavoring to overturn the result of the primary election and from attempting to bring on a chaotic condition in the governmental affairs of Georgia."

"We urge that every legal effort be made to sustain the County Unit System and the nomination of Mr. Talmadge thereunder, and that the State officials and attorneys charged with the duty of defending the constitutionality of our laws vigorously defend the unanimous opinion and decision of the three distinguished United States Judges who recently upheld the County Unit Plan."

"This Convention goes on record as advocating a continuation of the County Unit System. We direct its adoption by the State Democratic Executive Committee elected by this Convention for future primaries."

WHITE PRIMARY
—"On the Democratic white primary, the full text of the platform read:

"We deem it necessary to the preservation of good government in Georgia that the institution known as the White Democratic Primary be preserved. We deem it necessary and proper that all steps appropriate to the attainment of that end be taken."

"In order to successfully and legally preserve the White Primary System in Georgia, we unanimously and wholeheartedly endorse the plans of the Democratic nominee for Governor, Hon. Eugene Talmadge, for the preservation and perpetuation of the White Primary System in the Democratic Party."

"We urge the enactment of all laws necessary to accomplish that purpose. We likewise urge the repeal of all existing statutes which may prevent or tend to prevent the accomplishment of that purpose."

"We direct and instruct the State Democratic Executive Committee selected by this Convention to adopt and enforce all such rules and regulations as may be necessary and expedient to the preservation of the White Democratic Primary and that such rules and regulations provide for every contingency now governed by any statute which it may be found necessary or advisable to repeal."

RIGHT OF THE PARTY
—"The Democratic Party in Georgia, in this Convention assembled, asserts and declares its right and the right of every other political party to exclude from participation in party primaries and in party affairs persons who, under the time-honored customs and traditions of such party, are not entitled to participate therein."

"We urge the enactment by the General Assembly of all such statutes as may be necessary to secure this inalienable right; and we urge the repeal of all existing statutes which encroach upon, or have been construed to encroach upon, this privilege."

"We direct the State Democratic Committee to adopt, promulgate and enforce such rules and regulations as may be necessary to secure these rights and privileges to the Democratic Party in Georgia."

REVENUE LAWS
—"We recommend the enactment of such laws as may be necessary to provide revenue sufficient to accomplish the purposes stated in this platform."

PUBLIC OFFICIALS
—"We urge upon the General Assembly and upon the next Administration observance of both the letter and spirit" of the constitutional provision that no Legislator "shall be employed by the State . . . during every effort be made to get promptly our full share of Federal funds for Federal highways in our State."

HEALTH MEASURES
—"Communities which do not have adequate hospitals . . . should by appropriations from the Legislature be enabled to erect local hospitals and medical centers." All emergency institutions should be provided with ample funds "to enable them to properly care for their inmates."

VETERANS
—"Advocate free business licenses, free auto driving licenses, adequate housing facilities, financial aid by means of the Veterans' Resettlement Corporation" for veterans. It adds that veterans "should have preference in appointments to office, all other things being equal."

SCHOOLS
—"Advocate continuance of the 50 percent increase in salaries for teachers and bus drivers. "We reaffirm our allegiance to and support of the University System of Georgia."

Talmadge Pledges To Ban Negro Vote

MACON, Oct. 9.—Eugene Talmadge, who was nominated by 4,500 representatives of the Democratic Party as their candidate for next Governor of Georgia, pledged to the State party convention Wednesday that Negroes would not again be permitted to vote in a Democratic primary.

The shouting, cheering convention delegates, selected by Talmadge for following the candidates' victory in last July's primary, heard the pledge as Herman Talmadge substituted for his father, ill with a stomach ailment in a Jacksonville, Fla. hospital.

The delegates also heard Rep. Eugene Cox, longtime Congressional floor critic of the administration, call for the South if necessary to break with tradition and its allegiance to the Democratic Party rather than submit to further association of the party with "alien-minded" doctrinaires and the CIO Political Action Committee.

HERMAN READS SPEECH

In the address which Herman read for his father, Talmadge declared that "We Democrats who believe in the democracy of our forefathers, believe that a Democratic White Primary should be restored in our Southland."

Acknowledging that Negroes had made progress, Talmadge contended that the race had not made sufficient progress to cast "an intelligent ballot." He asserted this was demonstrated in the July Primary—when Negroes voted for the first time in a party primary—by the fact that one of the four candidates received "99 percent of the Negro vote."

Talmadge continued: "Such block voting by an uneducated themselves together to chose their candidates for public office."

Castigating "the political, alien-minded propagandists who cover the land like a horde of rats," Cox appealed for a united front of Southern Democrats, saying: "The South, still wedded to the democracy of Jefferson and Jackson, holds within its own hands the power to save itself, and in saving itself, to save the nation."

and before it will submit to giving up its civilization under Federal compulsion it will and it should exercise that power, which is political in character, by breaking with tradition, and make its own welfare its first concern."

Declared Cox: "The marriage between government and the Political Action Committee must be dissolved, or else the country is doomed."

The South, he said, still is the influence which keeps democracy alive in America, adding: "Without its constant support, the party now in power would have perished long ago."

SOUTH HOLDS POWER

"The South," he continued, "still wedded to the democracy of Jefferson and Jackson, holds within its own hands the power to save itself, and in saving itself, to save the nation."

"It must no longer submit to the suppliant role of a poor relative, to being the tail of its own kite. And before it will submit to giving up its civilization under Federal compulsion, it will and it should exercise that power, which is political in character, by breaking with tradition, and make its own welfare its first concern."

Cox denounced outgoing Gov. Arnall as an advocate of "so-called 'good government' which would be 'good' only in the sense that it would serve the ends of interlopers seeking to take control" and accused him of having common cause "with the harlequins of Harlem and the communistic carpetbaggers of Moscow." He continued:

"Gene Talmadge, as Governor, will uphold the dignity, the integrity, and the sovereignty of the State, and he will repel to the full extent of his ability every encroachment thereon. If Congress should attempt to invade the State and break down her fundamental laws which constitute the pillars of her whole system of jurisprudence, and to seize powers reserved by the Constitution to the States, or the people thereof, he will resist with all the forces at his command."

Cox, touching on Georgia domestic affairs, told the Convention:

"Georgia wants a Governor who will administer the affairs of our people wisely, and who will not make common cause with the har-

Georgia Tech Applies for FM License

Georgia Tech yesterday filed application to the Federal Communications Commission for permission to erect a 50,000-watt frequency modulation radio station, said to be the most powerful FM station south in this area.

The application, which was made by Frank M. Spratlin, Chairman of the Radio Committee of the Board of Regents on behalf of Tech, will be acted upon by the FCC at a hearing in Atlanta Oct. 28.

Mrs. John Fulton, of the Georgia Tech station, WGST, said the frequency modulation station would take static-free programs to listeners within an area of 27,000 square miles. This area has a population of 2,000,000 people, both urban and rural families.

The FM station, operating separately from the present WGST, probably will be assigned the call letters WGST-FM if the application is granted.

WGST already has outlined a detailed program of broadcasting, designed to take to far audiences programs of special interest to them. Ben Akerman, chief engineer at WGST, said the transmitter would be located near Jasper Burnt Mountain, which is 2,300 feet above sea level and 54 miles from Atlanta. The site was acquired from Tate Mountain Associates. Programs will be transmitted from the Atlanta studios to the mountain by radio and retransmitted.

The WGST frequency modulation station is one of six sought in this area. Only one so far has been granted and that to The Atlanta Constitution.

Car Motorman Suffers From Physical Shock

Georgia Power Company officials said yesterday that an investigation of a reported electric shock suffered by a trackless trolley operator Tuesday has shown that there was nothing wrong with the trolley and that the operator was stricken by a physical shock and not an electric shock.

The operator, L. E. DeLoach, of 936 Church St., Decatur, was reported to be in good condition yesterday at Emory Hospital, where he was taken Tuesday after he collapsed suddenly from an electric shock when he started to board his trolley on North Avenue near Linwood Avenue after making repairs to the machine which had stalled.

Power Company officials said DeLoach apparently was suffering from some physical ailment and his collapse while boarding the trolley was a coincidence which three passengers into a fright. He had just returned to work after a long illness.

Lequins of Harlem and the communistic carpetbaggers of Moscow who came mouthing their monotonous chant of "Reform Georgia! Reform Georgia! Reform Georgia!"

Cox defended the county unit system, under which Talmadge won nomination although he obtained fewer popular votes than his principal opponent, James V. Carmichael, asserting it "was devised to insure the wise and salutary distribution of political power and to prevent complete control of State government falling under the domination of populous centers."

"Now mark you," he continued, "the contest was not between Gene Talmadge and Jimmie Carmichael; the contest was between Gene Talmadge and Ellis Arnall, and like 'humpy-dumpy' Ellis had a great fall, and like 'humpy-dumpy' again, all the radical jackasses and all of Wallace's men can never put Ellis together again, for as surely as Gene Talmadge becomes Governor for the fourth time, something will be done to maintain white supremacy."

Peters New Chairman Of Executive Committee

MACON, Oct. 9.—James S. Peters, of Manchester, a staunch supporter of Gov.-Nominee Eugene Talmadge, will head the State Democratic Executive Committee for the next four years.

He was chosen Wednesday by the party convention in session here, and immediately named the 60-member executive committee to serve with him.

Peters pledged continuation of the county-unit system of voting, which he said was Georgia's protection against machine politics "such as exist in Tennessee."

Benton Odum, of Newton, was named First Vice Chairman of the convention after nomination by Herschel Lovett, of Dublin, and seconding by Brig. Gen. Marvin Griffin, of Bainbridge, who was Arnall's appointee as Adjutant General.

Henry Chandler, of Atlanta, Secretary of the Georgia Federation of Labor, was named Second Vice Chairman, and Mrs. Susie T. Moore, of Tifton, Third Vice Chairman.

The Convention named Clarence McLanahan, of Elberton, Fourth Vice Chairman.

Joe Boone, Clerk of the House of Representatives, was elected permanent Secretary, and Cecil Hester, of Atlanta, was named Treasurer.

Mrs. Iris Blitch, of Homerville, nominee for State Senator, was named assistant secretary.

Members of the executive committee named by Peters are:

First District: W. G. Neville, of Bullock County; Dr. W. C. Jarvis, of Burke; Leo Griffin, of Chatham; Phillip Morgan, of Effingham; Mrs. Jim L. Gills, Jr., of Effingham; J. T. Grice, of Tattnall.

In reversing the Contest Committee's ruling that there could be two nominees, he said, "it is only what could be expected. The Convention considered the facts and found I am the only nominee of the party and so declared."

The preservation of the party requires all members to support its nominees and as the nominee of the party in the Fifth District, I call on all loyal Democrats to wholeheartedly support me in the general election."

The first tangible reaction to the Convention's action came in a suit filed in Atlanta only a few hours after the Convention acted.

Sol. Gen. Andrew J. Ryan, of Chatham County, filed a petition of injunction against the Secretary of State to prevent him from placing on the Nov. 5 ballot the name of Judge Columbus E. Alexander for Ryan's post.

Ryan was named Solicitor by Gov. Arnall to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Samuel A. Conn. He contended in his petition he was named too late to qualify for the general election, since a candidate must qualify 30 days before the election. The unexpired term to which he was named, he asserted, will run until Jan. 1, 1947, but the next general election will not be held until 1948.

The Macon Convention nominated Judge Alexander as party candidate, and Ryan immediately filed suit in Fulton Superior Court through Atty. Marvin O'Neal. Ryan contended less than 30 days remains for Alexander to qualify, that this is less than provided by law.

Another court decision had possible bearing on the Mankin-Davis contest.

Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, of Fulton Superior Court, threw out of court a case involving an election candidacy because, he said, the question would be moot since insufficient time remains for the candidate to qualify for the General Election.

The case was that of Frank Lowson, of Twiggs County, who contested the State law requiring that before a party can place a candidate's name on a ballot, that party must have polled five percent of the total votes cast in the last General Election or present a petition bearing five percent of the signatures of registered voters.

Lowson contended the law was unconstitutional and asked the Court to rule that Secretary of State Ben W. Fortson must place his name on the ballot.

Judge Dorsey in his opinion said: "It is the opinion of the Court that part of the act of the Legislature . . . as amended with reference to the five percent provisions, is probably unconstitutional, but the judgment of the Court is not based on that theory."

"If the Court at the present time were to order any relief given, its judgment would be moot unless accompanied by actual relief."

The Judge then pointed out that the state law requires the Secretary of State to certify candidates 90 days in advance of the General Election and have ballots printed 70 days in advance. Lowson, he said, did not ask that his name be listed until Aug. 6, 91 days before the election.

The court action was brought by Lowson Aug. 21.

In refusing to issue his opinion of the law as the judgment sought by Lowson, Judge Dorsey said he had a right to take into consideration the lateness of the suit and the cost of possible revision of the ballot. He said Lowson failed to seek relief in time to complete litigation earlier.

Mrs. Mankin said that Judge Dorsey's opinion was "a very clear statement of the law."

The fact that a ballot must be certified 90 days before an election and the contention that once the Secretary of State certifies the ballot it can not be changed are the bases of Mrs. Mankin's stand. The Convention is without authority to change the ballot or force the Secretary of State to change it.

Mrs. Mankin says further that both Fulton and DeKalb Counties have prepared soldier vote and absentee ballots with her name appearing on them, and that the ballots have been mailed to those requesting them.

Mrs. Mankin emphasized the fact the date of the Democratic Convention was set with full knowledge of all concerned that it would be held in less than 30 days from the election. The soldier vote law now on the books calls for certification of candidates 90 days before an election, the old law, 30 days before an election.

HARMONY AT MACON—Political enemy of a few months ago disappears at the State Democratic Convention in Macon as Herman Talmadge (left), son of Gov.-Nominate Eugene Talmadge, goes into a huddle with Ex-Gov. E. D. Rivers who opposed Talmadge in last Summer's primary. While their husbands confer, Mrs. Herman Talmadge, partially hidden by her spouse, has a tete-a-tete with Mrs. Rivers who is shown at the right.

The fact that the convention was set in less than 30 days from the election precluded any action by the convention in changing candidates under either law, she said.

The threat of party banishment to the Secretary of State and ordinary certifying persons not endorsed by the convention, she insists, is a request to the State officials to disobey the laws they are sworn to uphold.

"No Convention," she declared, "can change a State law. No Convention resolution can be followed by a State official in contradiction of a State law."

It's ridiculous. Two of the Ordinaries in the three counties of the Fifth District—Judge Eugene Gunby, of Fulton, and Judge Luther Morris, of Rockdale—said they would make no statement until they had received official copies of the resolution. Judge V. S. Morgan, of DeKalb, could not be reached for comment, nor could Secretary of State Fortson.

Asked what her next step would be, Mrs. Mankin said there is nothing for me to do. My name is on the ballot, I will be in the election Nov. 5.

"If there is any next step, it will be up to Judge Davis. The Convention is without authority to take my name off the ballot. If he wants to try to get my name off the ballot, it will be up to him to institute court action."

In ruling in favor of Judge Davis, the Macon Convention adopted the recommendation of its own Contest Committee headed by Carlton Mobley.

The contest came about long before the primary was held. Mrs. Mankin won a special election under popular vote when Robert Ramspeck resigned from Congress.

The Fifth District Executive Committee, which had handled primaries for Ramspeck, had been operating on a popular vote basis, but before the primary decided to switch to the county unit system, under which DeKalb has six votes, Fulton six and Rockdale two. Mrs. Mankin attempted to fill vacancies on the old committee, and was refused the right.

She then appointed a committee of her own, which ruled for the popular vote system. She carried the popular vote through a heavy majority in Fulton County, but lost DeKalb and Rockdale, and hence the unit vote.

The dispute was placed before the State Democratic Executive Committee, which ruled both candidates should be placed on the Nov. 5 general election ballot. With such a certificate from the committee, the Secretary of State certified both candidates to the county ordinaries.

The ruling of the Convention on the contest today was:

"(1) That the Democratic Executive Committee of the Fifth Congressional District of Georgia, of which Judge Shepard Bryan was Chairman, C. Murphy Candler, Vice Chairman, and Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, Secretary, was the only legal and valid Executive Committee for said Fifth District, and that because of the failure and refusal of the said Mrs. Helen D. Mankin to qualify as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress with said Committee, as required by its rules, she was not a qualified candidate in the Primary of July 17, 1946, and was not entitled to have her name appear on ballots as such candidate."

"(2) That the Hon. James C. Davis, having received a majority of the county units as a result of said primary of July 17, 1946, is the nominee of the Democratic Party for representative in Congress for the Fifth District of Georgia at the General Election to be held Nov. 5, 1946, and he and she are hereby disqualified, and the certification of the said Mrs. Helen D. Mankin as such co-nominee to the Secretary of State is annulled and withdrawn."

"(3) That the action of the Chairman and Secretary of the State Democratic Executive Committee in certifying to the Secretary of State of the State of Georgia the name of Mrs. Helen D. Mankin as a co-nominee of the Democratic Party for Representative in Congress from the Fifth District of Georgia and in directing that her name as such be entered along with that of the Hon. James C. Davis as Democratic candidate on the ballot in the General Election to be held Nov. 5, 1946, be and she are hereby disapproved, and the certification of the said Mrs. Helen D. Mankin as such co-nominee to the Secretary of State is annulled and withdrawn."

"(4) That the Chairman and Secretary of this Convention be and they are hereby instructed to furnish a certified copy of this resolution to the Secretary of State of the State of Georgia and to the ordinaries of each of the counties composing the Fifth Congressional District, and said Secretary of State and said ordinaries are instructed to give full effect to this resolution in preparing for said November General Election."

"(5) It shall be the duty of the Chairman and Secretary of this Convention who will be Chairman and Secretary respectively of the State Democratic Executive Committee elected by this Convention to take such steps as may be necessary to enforce this resolution."

State Legislature to eliminate these references to the primary so as to circumvent the United States Supreme Court ruling which permitted Negroes to vote last Summer. Talmadge pledged this action in his campaign.

Fiery Cox set off the fireworks with a blistering attack on Gov. Arnall and the foreign influences of the North and of Russia. The crowd, which jammed Macon's City Auditorium, loudly cheered Cox when he described Talmadge's victory over Jimmie Carmichael as really a victory over Arnall, and declared that "all the radical jackasses couldn't put humpty-dumpty together again."

At Henson, power in former Talmadge administrations and author of a biography of Talmadge, told the convention that a Negro was running for coroner of Fulton County.

"This means he will get 20,000 Negro votes to begin with," Henson shouted, "and, added to this he will get 5,000 votes from people whom I would like to confer the title of 'honorary Negroes.'"

Adj. Gen. Marvin Griffin, "white" primary advocate who was defeated for lieutenant-governor in the recent primary, was applauded vigorously when he seconded the motion of a nomination for a leader of the "white Democratic party of Georgia." He hit at "scalawag Democrats" who would surrender "our party to the Negroes."

And, as he praised Benton Odum for the post of vice chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee, Griffin observed that "there are no railroads running into Baker County, so no new-fangled political ideas have entered that County. It is the hub of old-fashioned democracy."

The Convention rejoiced that "good government" of its opponents was smashed in the recent primary, but it looked forward to the new Talmadge administration to carry on the State's greatest program of expansion.

Ross Sharpe, of Tombs County, remarked sarcastically that in the recent primary the "thunder of the opposition roared, the lightning of the press flashed, but the voters of Georgia smashed 'good government' into hell."

The new party chairman, James Peters, of Manchester, declared Talmadge had kept all his promises of previous administrations, and invited the people to watch Talmadge keep his promises for the future. He declared Talmadge would lead Georgia to the greatest expansion program in history for education, highway building, social security and health.

Labor leaders said they anticipated a harmonious and progressive administration under Talmadge. Cicero Kendrick, of Atlanta, expressed appreciation that Talmadge had named as vice chairman of the State party, Henry Chandler, of Atlanta, Secretary of the Georgia Federation of Trades.

The Convention declared all-out war on the amendment to be voted on Nov. 5 setting up a Constitutional Welfare Department.

Chairman Peters launched the attack on the amendment, asking all the delegates to return home and fight it.

lie Redwine, of Fayetteville, reminded the responsive crowd that Talmadge had ridded Georgia of Dean Walter Cocking, "who preached racial and education equality" at the University, at the expense of his (Talmadge) political defeat in 1941. Redwine added that it was worth it to run Cocking out of the State.

T. W. Reed, retired registrar of the University of Georgia, in seconding Talmadge's nomination, said the University has nothing to fear from Talmadge. Three generations of Talmadges have attended this school, he pointed out. In all harmonious session, the Convention blasted at Gov. Arnall, lashed at the "isms" and called for a return to "old-fashioned Democracy."

It called upon the voters in the Nov. 5 general election to defeat a proposed constitutional amendment setting up a constitutional welfare board. This proposal was denounced by the new party Chairman, James Peters, of Manchester, by Herman Talmadge and by the party as a whole, which declared it would freeze into office the present welfare director, A. J. Hartley.

The accent of the convention was on "white," as virtually all the speakers lashed at "blacks," "reds" and "pinks."

Delivering his father's speech, Herman Talmadge climaxed the convention with a pledge to ban Negroes from voting in future Georgia Democratic primaries and to safeguard the county unit system.

The convention adopted a platform designed to limit membership in the Democratic Party to white people and to protect the county unit system. As the convention wrote into party rules all the laws governing the primary election, it also requested the rektor, whom he said the amendment would freeze into office.

The Convention adopted a resolution condemning the amendment. It said Hartley would remain in office for at least six years, drawing $7,000 annual salary, and that he would control the new board. It pointed out that the new board members would not require confirmation by the Senate.

Retiring House Speaker Roy Harris took the floor to denounce the "Hartley Amendment." He declared that Gov. Arnall is trying to keep Hartley in office as a wedge to carry on a fight to restore Negro voting in Georgia Democratic primaries.

He anticipated that Arnall would lead a fight against restoration of the white primary at the January Legislative session.

Ike Sinks 18-Foot Putt On Famed St. Andrews

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Geh. Eisenhower holed an 18-foot putt Wednesday for a teamwork birdie three on the first hole at the Royal and Ancient St. Andrews Golf Club.

The grinning general, voted an honorary life membership in the club, let Club Capt. Roger Weathered, his partner, hit the first two shots, a sizzling drive and an approach to within 18 feet of the pin. Then the general stepped up and sank the putt.

Eisenhower and his group played six holes in unorthodox fashion and then returned to the clubhouse for a luncheon in the general's honor.

A Splendid Appointment for Georgia

Raymond R. Paty, now President of the University of Alabama, yesterday was elected Chancellor of the University System of Georgia.

The Board of Regents could have made no finer choice.

Raymond R. Paty is Southern born. The education of the South and the amelioration of its problems have been his life work.

A Tennessean, he had his feet set on the right path by his devoted parents who gave him over to Old Sawney Webb at Bell Buckle, Tenn., for his first real schooling.

Since that time he has given his life to education in the South. He organized a mountain school in Tennessee and taught in it. He went on to college, progressing in his own work. He was Phi Beta Kappa and to his A. B. he added his doctor's degree and others.

Seeing about him the tragic poverty of Southern schools and their sacrificing, hard-striving teachers, he served for a while with the Rosenwald Fund as director of scholarships. Never has that educational fund been so wisely directed as then in its scholarship decisions. He left that organization pleasantly, but after disagreement as to policy.

When the Georgia committee began to investigate him, attracted by his fine record as Dean of Men at Emory University and as President of Birmingham Southern and Alabama, they were surprised, and somewhat chagrined, to find that scholastic circles rated the University of Alabama to have made more progress during the four years under Dr. Paty than any other State university. It was, for instance, rated well above Georgia's progress and Dr. Paty properly was credited with that advance. He had, in his brief time there, created and brought into full standing and accreditation, a medical school and a hospital, in addition to strengthening other schools in the University System.

It needs saying that before he conferred with the Regents' Committee he paid a call on Governor-Nominate Eugene Talmadge, who previously had told the committee he had nothing to do with educational matters and also that he could not comment on Dr. Paty because he didn't know him. The two parted with mutual respect and understanding.

Dr. Paty's wide experience in education, his vision, his courage and his devotion to true education, means much to Georgia. His influence will not be confined merely to the University System, because it is too broad for that field, great as it is.

It means a great forward impetus for the University. The eyes of the educational world have long been upon it. The national respect in which Dr. Paty is held will add immediately to the prestige of the University.

Dr. Harmon Caldwell, the most able and greatly respected President of the University, had long ago notified Regents he did not want the position and would take it only in the event they could find no one to fill it. He has made a great contribution to education in Georgia and he and Paty, being warm friends of long standing, will continue to do so together.

It is a splendid appointment, one of the finest in our history of education in Georgia.

The Constitution urges upon every citizen of the State to keep always in mind that in this age of atomic fission and of astounding developments in science and life, education is the vital ingredient.

Let us sacrifice whatever it costs to give to our common schools and to our University System whatever money is necessary to provide the young people of Georgia with the best that may be had.

Cleveland's Clean-Up Campaign

At least one Georgia town, Cleveland, has demonstrated a willingness to do something other than talk about the need for improving its appearance. Every business house in Cleveland closed its doors yesterday while citizens inaugurated a community-wide campaign to eradicate filth and eliminate unsightliness. Dilapidated buildings were removed, vacant lots were cleared, and a general scouring was the order of the day. The Constitution, congratulating Cleveland on its action, recommends its example to other Georgia communities, from the smallest right on up to, yes, the largest. How about it, Atlanta?

Welcome to 'Heaven'

The good people of Blue Ridge, Ga., when they have visitors, like to drive them over the 11 miles to scarred, treeless, grassless Copperhill, Tenn., and say, "This is hell." Then they drive them happily back to Blue Ridge and say, "This is Heaven."

Hence, it is with pleasure that we read that, in effect, Copperhill is going to pick itself up and move over into "Heaven." On the Georgia side of the line, that is. A new city is going to be built by the Tennessee Copper Company and, of course, in looking about for the best site Georgia was chosen. The Constitution, always a friend of Copperhill, nevertheless welcomes the new city to "Heaven."

Also, as every Blue Ridge resident can tell them, the climate is better in Georgia, the birds sing more merrily and the mountains are closer to the skies.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

Will Reverse

Editor Constitution: Your column of the old "misadventure" (Mr. Jones) today in which he does a job on the three Southern judges who rendered an adverse decision on the Georgia County Unit System case, is choice. The kicks and bricks, thrust and thrown by Mr. Jones at this trusty triumvirate of Southern judges, hit their mark squarely.

Of course, their decision, formed on the basis of irrelevant ratiocinations rather than in accord with the spirit of the laws expressed in the constitution, will be reversed by the Supreme Court, as frequently happens when cases decided in conformity with subjective Southern prejudices which are opposed to change of any kind, are appealed to a higher judicial tribunal whose personnel functions in a legal atmosphere unbefogged by the misty fabrications of Southern legislative fathers.

Strength Needed

Editor Constitution: We are headed in the same direction that we were after World War I, except we are going on a faster and larger scale. The late Will Rogers once said that there is something unique about these United States. They have never lost a war and have never won a conference. That is still true.

Unless the United States, Great Britain and Russia reverse some of their policies, we will have World War III within the next ten years, with the United States and Great Britain fighting against the rest of Europe and if it doesn't destroy the world it will destroy civilization.

The morale of the world of the service men is so low that it would be almost impossible to muster a fighting force at this time.

The late Vice President Marshall made the statement several years ago that what this country needs is a good five-cent cigar.

What this country needs today is a president strong enough to smoke a five-cent cigar.

Peace Formula

Editor Constitution: The people of the world were never homogenous. Never were they united by common religion, economic system, language or ideology. There are more than 5,000 spoken languages, each giving vent to its own nationalism.

The foundation for permanent peace is not based on the principle that one nation or group of nations is to impose its will on another by the use of force, economic sanctions or by granting favorable credit or trade relations. The formula for lasting peace must recognize the fact that all races and nationalities contribute to the progress of this world, they all have a right to livelihood, and all have a right to their language and beliefs.

When the ideology and experience of the West and East are fused by peacemakers, the resulting amalgamation forms a powerful bulwark for peace. The Congress of Vienna, 1815, with Russia playing an important role, wrote a peace that lasted a hundred years. Contrast this with the Versailles Conference, held in 1919, exclusively for Western democracies.

The views of Russia are to be considered in order to effectuate a lasting peace. Russia is not united by a common language. It is composed of 189 different nationalities, each speaking its own language in its own territory. Russia has learned by experience the "know-how" of giving nationalism its proper prestige so that these national groups live within her borders in harmonious relations with each other. In homogeneous democracies the stress is that the majority of people rules the minority. In heterogeneous countries the stress is that the rights of each minority speaking group must be protected against the encroachments of larger national groups. Russia can contribute much valuable experience and wisdom to effectuate a lasting peace.

The greater the difference between the East and West at the peace conference the larger must be the field of exploration into their respective ideologies and experiences. If their conflicting views are finally fused into a common decision, the people will enjoy a peace for several centuries.

Depression

Editor Constitution: If this grand old Union be that of a democracy—Government by the people—then why do we permit a certain Bureau, the OPA, to cause so much disunity. I read in today's paper where mine workers are going out on strike because of the lack of meat.

Recently, the word "depression" is coming into activity. Could there be a connecting link between OPA and depression—I wonder.

Rayon Isn't Just Stockings

There is hardly a textile mill in the United States whose executives are not biting their nails and jumping with their nerves as they contemplate the hard fact of synthetic fibers.

As far as I know, the cotton farmer, dweller in the kingdom of King Cotton, knows this.

His feet have been wet for a long time in the flood of low prices and it is only since the war came along that he has again been able to walk on financial dry ground.

He is a game fighter, is the cotton farmer, and his product is good even if it is necessary to place a subsidy on his product and to bolster it beyond the world price.

The economists say that eventually cotton has got to sell for what it will bring.

If so, that is something of vital importance to every one of us, in or out of cities.

Prove whether it is or isn't, the textile manufacturer finds the subject of absorbing interest.

He has got to guess right.

But, here of late, he is coming to think he can't miss.

Fibers When, in 1943 cotton crossed the 20-cent mark, the buyers and spinners looked around and saw that rayon at 25 cents was the better buy. There was no waste.

In 1946, when cotton crossed 30 cents, the boys knew.

At today's fiber and yarn prices only the very limited productive capacity of the synthetic fiber plants is preventing use of synthetic fibers in quantity rivaling, or exceeding, the use of cotton.

Supply is small. There is an annual production of about 900,000,000 pounds of fiber, as compared with annual consumption of about 4,000,000,000 pounds of cotton.

Synthetics now are rationed to consumers. There is a production gain of nine percent this year, an anticipated 15 percent gain in 1947.

The impact of this amount of synthetics is tremendous. This solemn fact makes the sound of talk about 40-cent and even 75-cent cotton, sound very hollow indeed.

Rayon production has declined since the beginning of the war because of the abolition of Japanese, Italian and German contributions to the United States produced about one-fifth of the world's rayon. Today, it produces about one-half.

Foreign There is a lot of talk, and considerable worry, about cotton production in foreign countries. Much of this talk is foolish. The more rabid attempt to blame it on the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, who, one would think listening to them, went secretly to Brazil and planted millions of acres.

Any thoughtful man must know, and admit, that once the price of U. S. cotton rose well above the world price, there was no earthly way to prevent growers in other countries from immediately expanding their production of cotton. They are as eager to pick up a dollar as anyone else. There was no way, for instance, to prevent Russia from becoming independent in cotton. Her fields are expanding. China is not a great cotton producer only because of her internal troubles.

But, it is not foreign cotton production alone which must give pause.

Brazil, Venezuela, Chile, Colombia, The Argentine, Cuba, Australia, India, Mexico, even cotton-growing Egypt and Canada are among the countries now constructing and completing synthetic fiber plants.

It is not merely nylon. There are three firms now in production in the glass fiber field and two other methods of producing synthetics also are in production.

Tire Cord Cotton people tell me that new discoveries in cotton cord production make it undeniably superior to rayon for that purpose.

Yet, I note from the Textile World that tire-cord use of rayon has not ceased with the end of the war. Tire-cord rayon delivered from January to June of this year was at a rate 13 percent greater than the average for 1945.

There are American plants in the process of construction which will add nearly 30 percent to the rate of production by the end of 1947.

This is a part of the story—I frankly don't know the answers, but something would seem advised beyond waiting for cotton to go to 50 cents.

It means too much to too many of us.

And the cotton farmer deserves all the help he can get.

Nothing more greatly dramatizes the South's need for research into its raw material possibilities than this story of cotton, and synthetics.

We All Share In Fire Losses

When howling sirens publish the news of another fire, all of us should be reminded of the famous lines:

"Do not send to inquire for whom the bell tolls. It tolls for thee."

You may have no recognized interest in the property that is burning, but you will share the loss. Fire losses are part of the cost of doing business, and must be added to the price of goods.

If you live far from a timber region and get neither wages nor any part of your living from the lumber business, you may feel no concern when fire destroys many square miles of forest.

But your attitude will change if you plan to build a house or even buy a few boards to build shelves in a closet.

We are all bound together in a single economic unit, and the loss suffered by one is somehow unavoidably felt by all.

Underwriters say our direct fire loss in the first half of this year was over $300,000,000. This direct and indirect loss for the full year will exceed $2,000,000,000.

Some losses are temporary and can be regained; but fire, like war, destroys forever. Something that was gone, and all of us are left poorer.

Fire loss determines the cost of insurance. Your rate is higher because people unknown to you carelessly started fires.

You pay more for burglary insurance and car insurance because people are stealing and more drivers are wrecking their cars. (Damage to a wrecked car is not the only loss. To this must be added the doctor and the hospital bills—and sometimes the cost of a funeral and a tombstone.)

Our needless losses are almost beyond counting.

You can't compute the direct and indirect cost of needless strikes—and they are needless, for if one can be settled at last, it could have been settled at first.

The common cold or "flu," made epidemic by our utter disregard for others, costs us untold millions. No other malady costs so many working hours. Money paid for medicine and doctoring goes from one pocket to another and balances the account, but the loss of wages, profits and production is complete and final.

You may escape all direct losses, but you will pay your share. It will be taken from your wages or profits, and it will be charged to you as one of the ultimate consumers, whose fate it is to pay for everything.

EDITORS SAY:

COTTON AGAIN BRINGS 40 CENTS A POUND

(Gainesville News)

A bale of cotton was sold in Gainesville this week for 40 cents a pound. It was bought by Ralph McGill, Editor of the Atlanta Constitution, and the bale weighed 305 pounds. Its owner received $202 for it.

Not since 1918 has cotton sold for as much as 40 cents a pound here in Hall County. Our hope is that our farmers will not now go wild and plant the whole earth in cotton. To do so would be to repeat the folly of 1918, when overproduction caused the price to skid to an unprecedented low.

There is no better time than now to grow soil-saving and soil-enriching crops, to make better pastures, to grow more grain crops, to engage in the production of better beef and milk cattle, to raise more hogs, to keep up our poultry industry, and to let cotton be the farmers' surplus rather than their main dependence.

Experience should be as good a teacher today as it has been since the beginning of time.

JACK TARVER

Don't Russians Believe In Sharing Suspense?

A Moscow newspaper has denounced Sherlock Holmes, terming him dangerous to Soviet morals and ideologies.

Is there no place in the new order for such decadent ideas as that crime does not pay?

Or is it merely that the communal state refuses to sanction such evidences of inequality as the condescending "Elementary, my dear Watson?"

Could it even be that the Russian editors have confused the capable Sherlock with the capitalist Shylock?

At any rate, and for whatever the reason, the case histories of fiction's most famous sleuth are no longer recommended reading—even as Mien Kampf—in Russian libraries.

If Soviet readers go in for who-done-its, one supposes, they can always ponder such local mysteries as "The Cryptic Kremlin" ... or "The Case of the Missing Balkans."

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

We Need More, Not Less, Controls

WASHINGTON—Figures on the movement of beef cattle to the market offer both an index and a commentary on the current meat shortage.

Last week, for example, the number moving to the market was only 207,600, a figure far out of proportion to what normally might be expected for this season of the year.

According to Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, there are some 52,000,000 head of beef cattle on the hoof in the country. At last week's rate of movement, therefore, it would take about five years to market the present available supply.

It must be obvious from this that, for one reason or other, cattle are being withheld from the market.

But the figures tell only a part of the story. Whereas it is usual for three-fourths of the cattle going to market at this time of the year to be sold for immediate slaughter, with the rest going to feeder lots for further fattening, actually the practice is now reversed.

Of the cattle going to market now only one-fourth is marked for slaughter, while three-fourths are going back to the cattlemen for feeding—or are being diverted to the black market for illegal slaughter.

Gambling The reason why the cattlemen are bidding against lots is fairly plain. Having had a taste of the high profits awaiting them without OPA controls, they are gambling on such controls being lifted when the present act expires next year, and are looking forward to a price increase of some 50 percent, which is what beef was bringing during the two months' hiatus over OPA back in July and August.

It is a good gamble if it works out that way. No farmer would sell his cotton or wheat today if he thought that by holding it nine months it would bring half as much again.

And even if price controls are continued after next June the cattlemen stand to lose nothing on their feeding operations because they will back out of feeding from the extra weight put on.

All of this smacks strongly of an organized sitdown strike by the cattlemen against the meat consumers of the country.

Labor It is not easy to escape the conclusion that the livestock producers are engaging in the same form of disregard of the common welfare as were certain labor groups earlier in the year.

Little distinction is to be drawn, it seems, between the refusal of labor to work except on its own terms, regardless of the public necessities, such as we had in the railroad strike, and the refusal of the producers of necessary commodities to sell their products except at their own terms, in similar disregard of public necessity, as we are witnessing in the meat industry.

They are both of the same cloth.

Suppose the producers of all scarce goods, on which there are price ceilings, acted in the same way? Suppose the steel manufacturers refused to sell their steel and insisted on building up stockpiles against the time when price controls are off?

We not only would have far less of the things that are rapidly returning to the market today, but our whole economy would be seriously affected.

Certainly the Government would not allow the steel industry to do that for a moment. There is no more reason why we should allow the livestock producers to do the same thing. A matter of public health and convenience is involved.

What the country needs is stronger and not less controls on those items of daily necessity which are still scarce.

Congress in a play to large voter elements, in an election year, was in too much haste to relax controls. Thus the OPA hiatus of last Summer.

Canada In Canada, our neighbor to the north, there is no meat shortage such as we have. Recent news dispatches have told of Americans pouring over the border by the thousands to buy a steak dinner. The prices charged range from $1.25 down for a two-inch-thick T-bone steak dinner.

Asked why Canada had meat at reasonable prices, a proprietor is quoted as saying: "Controls were clamped on meat at the source and on restaurant meals four years ago. They never were taken off and they never have been raised."

If Congress had followed a similar rigid policy with respect to needed controls the meat situation in the country would have been far different today. There would still have been a shortage, due to the fact that consumer demand for meat has increased considerably. But the shortage would not be aggravated by other factors now entering into the situation.

TOM STOKES

Northwest Is Booming

PORTLAND, Ore.—The Pacific Northwest is prosperous and full of hope, and justly so. It seems on the way at last to realization of its aspirations for an industrial empire of its own.

Everybody is in high spirits here for the picture is so different from what had been expected in some quarters.

There were visions of war plants closed, of workers who had come here from many parts of the country stranded and jobless. There was, of course, a temporary shutdown and lull. Shipbuilding has lost out and the airplane industry was curtailed.

But it didn't happen here. Many war industries are going right ahead now with peacetime production, well booked with orders, of which aluminum is perhaps the most notable example. Some workers left, but a large number remained and unemployment is not serious.

They found jobs, some in reconversion, war industries and many in a host of small new industries that have sprung up out of war experience and ingenuity of business men. Aluminum fabrication is responsible for many new small enterprises. There are others. And they are finding national markets through shrewd salesmanship.

THE TWO principal handicaps to a glowing boom are shortages in materials and skilled labor and engineer shortage is found in airplanes, as I discovered in a visit to the Boeing plant near Seattle. There was no particular problem during the war when the plant was turning out B-17s and B-29s according to design, in an assembly line process. But new business for commercial airlines and new military type planes is a custom job. Different customers have different ideas. There is much experimentation. This requires engineers and skilled labor.

Boeing has lots of orders. After a temporary shutdown, now employment is 11,000. This is expected to reach 16,000 in a few months and level off there. That's an example of what's happening.

The war was a start to this and so many other industries. Now they are off on their own steam. But, while the war provided the basis, there were so many other developments, often beginning years ago, that prepared the way—projects initiated in years past by forward-looking men. They were often called dreamers, some in politics and government, some in private industry.

CHEAP POWER is the key to new development here, and public power is the key to cheap power. It is proper then to recall the late Sen. Charles McNary, of the State, long-time Republican Senate floor leader, and his legislative activity on behalf of Bonneville. As a result of that pioneering, the power potential was here when the war came, ready for use and further development. Now it is available for peacetime production.

It is well, too, to recall the fight through the years against monopoly, notably, as far as this area is concerned, that to break up the Aluminum Company of America monopoly. Back in the 20s the late Tom Walsh, of Montana, started that. It was taken up later by the Roosevelt Administration, finally culminating successfully through the Justice Department.

So now today there are new comers in aluminum and in this area, the Reynolds Metals Company, the Kaiser interests, as well as the Aluminum Company. Breaking of the monopoly made this possible, made possible an expanding industry under free competitive enterprise.

It is well to recall these fights of the past and the men who made them. For the fight is still going on. It will take the same sort of courage and vision, to carry through and realize on the great possibilities. This fight is deeply involved in politics out here this year.

CELESTINE SIBLEY

At Last She Meets Franchot

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Jane Meadows is a name that may not mean anything to moviegoers right now, but we confidently predict that within a few months this newcomer from the stage will be making the marquee with the regularity of Hepburn and Bergman—and we want to go on record as being among the first to say she's terrific.

Not that we've seen Miss Meadows in the movies yet. (Her two first films, "Undercurrent" and "Lady in the Lake," are soon to be released by Paramount.) But she did us a Girl Scout turn we won't soon forget.

Jack Goldsmith, the Paramount publicity man, who used to be in Atlanta and now spends much of his time entertaining visiting firemen, was taking us to lunch at Romanoff's and he brought Jane along for fun. We sat on the terrace and craned our necks at celebrities while Jack copped with a menu and a waiter, both of which were unintelligible to us. Jane, a long-legged girl with dark red hair and coffee-colored eyes, told us about her adventures in the cinema city.

"MY SISTER and I came here from New York," she said, "and went to the Beverly Hills Hotel. We had always heard it was a mistake to be impressed by anything in Hollywood so we tried our damndest. We complained about the service and moaned that the hotel was a horrible old dump for the couple of days. Then we put on our bathing suits and went down to the pool and committed the greatest faux pas of all: We actually went swimming! Later we learned that all those beautiful girls we saw lounging around down there in the pool never went swimming. They just changed their bathing suits two or three times a day and didn't go near the water."

"That," concluded Jane, "gave us such a horrible inferiority complex, we went back to our room and hid for days."

Despite being a newcomer Jane apparently knew her way about among the stars. We gawked at the people entering and leaving the restaurant and kept nudging our companions with whispered, "Who's that?" Finally Jane took pity on us.

"If they come in like this," she said lifting her shoulders and looking down her nose in a very bored, supercilious manner, "they are nobody. And if they come in like this," she demonstrated by lounging in looking tired and harassed and a little droopy, "they're celebrities. Watch."

We did. Margo and her aunt, Carmen Cugat, wife of the band leader, left looking completely

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Elliott Unreliable

NEW YORK—Aside from all questions of ethics and manners, the book of reminiscences published under Elliott Roosevelt's name is not worth belief. He is untruthful and his memory is unreliable.

On the first point, an observation is found in a special memorandum in the Treasury's files which was considered by the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives in the sham investigation of Elliott's debts.

Discussing Elliott's own statement of his financial condition, a revenue agent reported that Elliott had failed to mention among his income or assets an inheritance of $19,000 from the estate of his grandmother, the late President's mother.

"ELLIOTT said he was not in the United States at the time she died," the memorandum said, "and he further claimed that he had no knowledge of the inheritance for a long time thereafter. We are not convinced that Elliott did not know he was a beneficiary to the extent of one-sixtieth of her net estate. We think he could have found out he had wanted to (if he did not actually know it). His father was one of the executors."

The Treasury report is more emphatic in the matter of Elliott's own statement to his brother, John Hartford, of the A&P Grocery chain, of the value of his, Elliott's, ranch and homestead in Texas. Elliott had given Hartford a gloomy view of this asset. The place, sold for $138,000 in 1944. On Dec. 22, 1942, Elliott had told Hartford that it was doubtful that the property would bring anything above the mortgage.

"WE FIND it difficult to believe him," the memorandum said. "The revenue agent who investigated the case in Texas is of the opinion that the fair market value of the equity owned by Elliott was approximately $95,000. It is apparent from the foregoing that Elliott did not deal fairly with Hartford in the letter of Dec. 22, 1942."

Though both the Treasury and the Democratic majority of the Ways and Means Committee went to awkward extremes to absolve Elliott of his debts and his late father of crooked dealings in both the promotion and settlement of the debt, the agents risked not bringing themselves to give Elliott a clean report on the score of honesty. In fact, they were compelled, on the record, to express the belief that he lied. As to his father's, the agents risked no conclusion, whatever. They simply could not vindicate FDR, so they said nothing.

ELLIOTT'S MOTHER, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, must agree that these official reports on her son's veracity should be attached as footnotes to his scandalous and unsupported personal story of momentous meetings between her late husband, Winston Churchill, Josef Stalin and others. She has written, in her foreword to the book: "This book gives one observer's first-hand account of what went on at the major conferences and will furnish future historians with some of the material which will constitute the final evaluation of history."

Undoubtedly Elliott's book will be read by future historians, but it is a duty of current reporters of history to warn them in cases where the author of the reference works bears a reputation such as the Treasury was forced to give Elliott.

IN THE MATTER of $25,000 received from Charles Harwood, a lawyer and minor Democratic machine politician, the Treasury and the Democratic majority of the Ways and Means Committee both deliberately smothered information that would have shown that Harwood was hopeful of receiving an appointment to the Federal Court after he put up the money. Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina, the Chairman, wrote that the Internal Revenue Bureau did not give the committee any information on the Harwood deal. That is strange, inasmuch as the committee could have forced the Internal Revenue Bureau to give it all information in its records. It is also untrue. The majority, which controlled the inquiry, deliberately decided not to ask for full information, although the fact was plain that Harwood received an appointment as Governor of the Virgin Islands after he put up the money. However, some information was submitted and studied.

JOSEPH O'CONNELL, JR., General Counsel of the Treasury, wrote on Feb. 5, 1946, that "The record contains no testimony of Mr. Harwood as none was taken." He does not explain why none was taken and his statement that none was taken is refuted by a long passage in a "memorandum for the Commissioner" which was released as part of the record by the Ways and Means Committee when it made its official and evasive report to Congress.

Discussing the Harwood item of $25,000, this "memorandum" says "Mr. Harwood has advised a representative of the Bureau of Internal Revenue . . ." etc., and "Mr. Harwood has stated . . ." etc. A statement certainly was taken, therefore, and the Treasury has flatly refused to reveal it and the Ways and Means Committee doggedly refused to ask for it.

I AM PREPARED to say that Harwood had told President Roosevelt that he wanted a Federal judgeship in which he would have a life job and would not have to run for election every so often. He was still hopeful of receiving an appointment to the United States when he sent the money to Elliott's company.

Cherokee Indians Shun Tribal Stuff

QUALIA INDIAN RESERVATION—The Cherokee was a peculiar Indian in that he very soon learned that the white man's way of living by tilling the soil was better than living by hunting and fishing, that a pair of stout jeans breeches were much more satisfactory than a wrap of deer hide about the withers, and that a good felt hat, pulled well down over the ears, was a far better protection to the skull in cold and blustery weather than a couple of bobbing feathers.

Consequently, though the Western Indian has clung to his ancient tribal ways pretty well into this generation, the Cherokee started imitating the first white man he saw, and has kept it up since. As a result it makes it a little difficult to put on the kind of Indian show here that the tourist expects to see.

You see plenty of Indians around here, of course. Old full-bloods with faces like the Indian on the buffalo nickel, and little black-haired babies with dancing black eyes, shiny as chinquapins, strapped to their mothers' backs. But they are dressed like anybody else, and if you were to close your eyes when listening to their speech you would think you were listening to any group of white mountain folk talking. They do not go in for the "Ugh" and "How" and "heep big chief" stuff.

English Names Most of the Indians bear English names, such as Hylthe and Driver and Bradley, and so on. There are a few aboriginal names, though. Standing Deer, an old fellow, is always entered in the archery contest, and the Owl family is still prominent in the affairs of the tribe. Mrs. Charlotte Bigmeat, whose husband runs the laundry, takes an active part in the things, and Mrs. Emily Vainstick is the Postmaster. But the finest craftsman in clay on the reservation is Mrs. Maude Welch, and two of the most deft makers of baskets and beadwork are Mrs. Henry Bradley and a Mrs. Stamper. There are two children in school on the reservation who are 1/128th Cherokee, and there are many persons in the some 3,500 members of the Eastern band who are 1/16th or 1/32d Cherokee.

By this I don't mean to imply that nothing looks, or seems, or acts Indian around here, for that is far from the truth. The Indian Bureau has labored hard to retain those elements of the old Cherokee culture which have value in a white man's civilization. They do beautiful basketwork, wood carving and beadwork and the finest craftsman in clay on the reservation is Mrs. Maude Welch, and two of the most deft makers of baskets and beadwork are Mrs. Henry Bradley and a Mrs. Stamper. There are two children in school on the reservation who are 1/128th Cherokee, and there are many persons in the some 3,500 members of the Eastern band who are 1/16th or 1/32d Cherokee.

Skilled Archers They shoot with bows and arrows with great skill, using fine weapons they make themselves, and they are deft with the blowgun, a long, polished cane that projects a steel-tipped dart feathered with thistle-down. There is an old Indian here, named Jim Catolsta, who can back his walrus mustache and blow a dart into a squirrel's ear at 50 feet without removing his chew of tobacco. And the ball game is authentic, barring the fact that the rivalry between the villages is less bitter than it was to be in the old days. And old Will West Long thumps the tom-tom for the Beaver dance and the Green Corn dance about like his great-great-granddaddy used to do it.

But the Cherokee don't go in much for the ancient ceremonies. Each superintendent here comes up to the time of the annual Cherokee Fair determined that this time there will be more ceremonies, more dancing and war-whooping and bead-and-feather wearing, and so on, that the tourists love to watch and take pictures of. But the Indian's passive resistance against these old ceremonies, which to him are almost empty of meaning now, always wins out. The school here has spent 51 weeks out of the year for 60 years trying to teach him how to be like white people, to live and act like white people, and he can't see why he should turn Indian for a week just to amuse and entertain a lot of visitors who happen to have a sentimental interest in, or a vague curiosity about, the way of life of the Indian's great-great-grandpappy.

Play for Pay He does a ceremonial dance or two every day and shoots the blowgun and the bow and arrow and plays the ball game for a $100 fee to be split between the teams. But his greatest interest is getting it over with and getting down on the midway, where a carnival of the usual type bongs and blares and glitters with all sorts of wonderful things to see and do, like the half-man, half-woman, the What-Is-It, the fire-eater, the midgets, the wild, careening rides, and the games of chance which take his money.

So they let him have his way, for if it weren't for the carnival, as discordant a note as it strikes in this magnificent setting of mountain, meadow, and dark river, he probably wouldn't leave his cabin in the deep coves to come down to the fair at all.

"Tipping is un-American and should be abolished."—Editorial quote.

It should afford us solemn pride to join in some crusade, To put all selfishness aside when clarion calls are made;

But, fail to tip . . . we wouldn't dare, though gladly would we lend Whatever effort we could spare to put it to an end.

The waitresses who serve the food, wherever we may dine, Are seldom noted in the mood to come to me and mine; That is, unless we seem to be appreciative gents And somewhat generous with the incentive that incents.

The porter on the Pullman car, the boy that shines the shoes, The fellow in behind the bar . . . all sing the "Gimme Blues"— One major item of expense, incurred on all our trips, That fills the old bank roll with dents, is passing out the tips.

And whether it is small or big, it's here with us to stay, To spread and prosper as the fig, to flourish like the bay, And while we walk around below the hat upon our head, We know that soon or late we'll go where waving palms are spread.

CHANNING COPE

Paternal Instinct Was Corky's Ruin

Corky, the combination Boston bull and smooth-haired fox terrier, who, because of his own lonely puppyhood (until Jean acquired him), had developed a great love and sympathy for all puppies, would have remained an upright, family-loving, home-abiding dog had it not been for the tragedy which overtook his adored companion, Midge. She was carried off forever in a cloud of dust and a screaming of automobile brakes, leaving Corky frustrated and restless and miserable.

He did not know what happened and he could not comprehend her desertion of him and the family. He became morose and petulant, growling at strangers, snarling at delivery boys and seizing every opportunity to fight with other male dogs. On one occasion, he tackled a pair of German police dogs which had been roaming the neighborhood for years without hindrance, and he was carried home from the encounter in a state of coma, and but for the constant ministrations of the family, would have passed on. In time, he pulled through, but the recollection of the tragedy merely increased his animosity to all other male dogs.

IN TIME, word came to Bernice that Corky had adopted another home, so she called on his new benefactors. By now she had given up hope of his returning home, but wanted to make sure he was well cared for. The new owners were cordial, and took Bernice to Corky's habitat. There he was, as happy as could be, with a lively litter of puppies scampering all about him and pulling on him and biting him and generally making a plaything of him. And in their midst was a beautiful collie, the mother of the brood. Corky had won himself another home; the kind he had been searching for, restlessly through the years. For him it was Paradise regained.

Corky is now gone, as is the way of all flesh, but the memory of him lingers on. He was unique in that his paternal instinct was so highly developed as to unfit him for any other kind of living. As a bachelor he was a failure, but as a family man, he was a complete success.

Albany, Atlanta, Dublin Plan Sunday School Meet

ALBANY, Oct. 9.—Albany has been selected as one of the three cities in which Georgia Baptist Sunday School Association Planing Conferences will be held Nov. 27, according to P. L. Johnston, representative of the Christian Index, of Atlanta, who is here to confer with Dr. Leonard A. Stephens, Pastor of the First Baptist Church, and other Baptist leaders on arrangements for the meeting.

Other cities chosen for the meetings were Atlanta and Dublin. The Atlanta meeting will be Nov. 25, and the Dublin meeting will be Dec. 26. More than 200 Association officers, from Baptist churches in the region, composed of Sunday schools from a territory extended from Columbus through Macon to Brunswick along with many visitors, will attend the three conferences. They will represent about 100,000 Baptist Sunday school members in this area. The program will be under the direction of Dr. T. W. Tippet, Georgia Baptist Sunday School Executive Secretary. Among the out-of-State speakers at the Conference will be Dr. J. N. Barnett, Dr. J. P. Edmunds and Dr. H. L. Grice, representing the Baptist Sunday School Board of Nashville, Tenn.

Speakers from Georgia Baptist headquarters who will lead group conferences will include Dr. D. A. Howard and Mrs. T. W. Tippet, of Atlanta; Miss Susie Eubanks, of Griffin; Mrs. A. F. McMeheon, of Griffin; The Rev. and Mrs. John W. Womble and Mrs. Ethel Davis, of Atlanta, will have part on the program.

Pastor Favors New Deal for Negro Members

Southern Presbyterians must change their point of view in dealing with members of the Negro race, Dr. Walter L. Lingle, of Davidson, N. C., said at a meeting of the Atlanta Presbytery held at Druid Hills Presbyterian Church yesterday.

"We need understanding hearts," the former Moderator of the General Assembly and ex-Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, said in his discussion on the attitude of the Southern Presbyterian Church toward Negroes. "Today there are fewer Negro members in our denomination than when it was first organized in 1861."

The Presbyterian Pastor commended the new extension program among the Negro population of the South which was authorized by the last General Assembly.

Dr. Lingle delivers his third address to the Presbytery at 10:30 a. m. today.

General Stresses Importance of Reserves, ROTC

America's peacetime Army is not the only important factor in her national defense—the Organized Reserve Corps and ROTC groups over the country deserve respectful attention, too.

That observation comes from Maj. Gen. Edward Sedley Bies, the Army Chief of Staff's Executive for Reserve and ROTC Affairs, who yesterday paid a visit to Seventh Army Headquarters here.

Gen. Bies reported the Reserve Corps, nationwide, now boasts 475,000 officers and half a million enlisted men.

The General said 240 colleges and other institutions now have senior ROTC units.

Between 60 and 70 percent of Regular Army officers discharged since V-J Day have enlisted in the Reserve, and between 8 and 10 percent of GIs are volunteering, Gen. Bies reported.

Seventh Army spokesmen said between 7,000 and 12,000 South-eastern ex-servicemen are now in the Reserve Corps.

NEWS ABOUT GEORGIA

Compiled from Constitution State News Reports
By BOB RUTHERFORD

HEADLINE NEWS OF GEORGIA: Charter members of the Macon Pilot Club will celebrate the 25th anniversary of the organization Oct. 19-20. . . . The Georgia Kiwanis organization will hold its first full-time annual convention since before the war at Augusta, Oct. 13-15. . . . The Tift County Chamber of Commerce has formed a New Industries Committee. . . . Bishop Arthur J. Moore will dedicate the new Smithville Methodist Church at special services Sunday.

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTEEN YEAR-OLD CENSUS: Lowndes County Ordinary T. N. Holcombe has placed in his safekeeping at Valdosta a 116-year-old census of the county. The book covers the years 1830-1840. According to the record contained in the census, Lowndes County had 2,453 residents in 1830—335 of whom were slaves. The record had the residents listed as follows: White males, 1,071; white females, 1,043; male slaves, 156; female slaves, 179. During that 10-year period the population increased by 3,097 residents.

NEWS BRIEFS OF GEORGIA: Coweta County's Farm Bureau membership drive has raised the membership to 343. Valdosta is experiencing a brisk building boom. . . . Because most South Georgia farmers sold all their watermelons at the Summer's high prices, much of the 1947 seed supply will come from Oklahoma, according to a Moultrie report. . . . The new Dalton Recreation Committee has added $500 to its building fund. . . . Methodist youth of the Dublin District will hold a rally at Swainsboro today.

PICKPOCKET MISSES TAKE: Rudolph Howell, of Valdosta, reported to police he had either met up with a "big town" pick-pocket or an accident. According to Howell, the rear pocket of his pants had been ripped open—and he didn't know how or when it happened. His wallet still was in the ripped pocket, but it appeared that someone had neatly cut open the pocket. However, the person had slashed the cloth a little too low to permit removal of the wallet.

SEEING DOUBLE: Like the dog in the fable that lost his meat while snapping at his image in the water, a jaybird at Rochelle came near to batting his brains out against a mirror reflecting his image yesterday. When the Rev. J. H. Quigley, Pastor of the Rochelle Baptist Church, heard flutterings of an undetermined nature on his back porch, he peered out the door to see the jay waging a losing battle with his own reflection in a mirror stored there. The bird finally fought itself into exhaustion and later he came back to make a close-up study of the scene of battle.

GEORGIANS IN THE NEWS: Herbert Moore has been named President of the Elberton Kiwanis Club. . . . R. D. Hodges is Chairman of the Executive Committee for the 36th annual session of the Laurens County Baptist Association to be held at Mount Zion Baptist Church near Rentz at 10 a. m. today. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Bill Watson, of Woodstock, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

lanta and "transported them to his farm near Conyers." One debt, which the farmer said was owed him by a worker, it is charged, was as small as $2.

The first arrest cited allegedly occurred in May, 1944, and the last, that of Bobby Glenn, in May, 1946.

Federal officials said Biggers was arrested on peonage charges once before, in 1917, but that the case resulted in a mistrial and later in an acquittal.

The Federal Grand Jury yesterday returned four other true bills, including two OPA charges termed by Assistant U. S. Attorney Allen E. Lockerman, as "two of the biggest black market cases to be cracked here."

One involving the possession and sale of more than 2,000 black market sugar ration stamps and 1,985 counterfeit stamps, indicts Herbert L. Crossley, 906 Underwood Ave., S. E.; Dudley S. Jackson, 764 Central Ave., S. E.; and Robert Lee Coursey, 361 Martin St., S. E.

Two former OPA employees, Jesse R. Adamston, guard at the OPA Forms Distribution Center in Atlanta, and Johnnie L. Miles, Negro messenger at the Center, were allegedly involved in transactions in which 1,198,000 gallons worth of black market gasoline ration coupons were sold, another indictment charges.

Also indicted were the following: Arthur Reagin, Sr., 52, and Arthur Reagin, Jr., 22, both of Lithonia; Amos E. Wright, 21, Talking Rock, and Markus E. Tatum, 20, Canton, all charged with illegal distilling.

NEWNAN, Oct. 9.—The Coweta Farm Bureau has been highly successful in its recent membership campaign and now has a total of 343 members, according to John Hood, President.

State Ed Strides Seen as Subject Of Digest Story

Because Georgia has made "an impressive although modest beginning" towards correcting its shortcomings in paying school teachers, the State may soon be the subject of an article, in the Reader's Digest.

Blake Clark, Education Editor of the magazine and a nationally known writer, is spending this week in Atlanta interviewing school authorities and teachers and collecting material for a follow up to the widely read, "Teachers' Pay, a National Disgrace," which appeared several months ago in the Digest.

Clark said when the Digest decided to follow through on the teacher pay article he asked the National Education Association and U. S. Bureau of Education in Washington to name a place which might be used as a model for the United States.

"It was agreed," the editor said, "that while nobody had reached the place that was ideal or even half-way satisfactory, Georgia had made an impressive, although modest beginning."

SURPLUS SURPLUS! IT'S WAA WORRY

Now War Assets Administration is trying to get rid of surplus surplus.

Regional WAA Director H. L. Kennon admitted yesterday the disposal agency has a white elephant inventory of stock that failed to sell at fixed prices in recent Georgia site sales.

The highest bidder can have such spurned items as volt-meters, empty tool kits, jacks, oil cans, punches, reamers, transformers, whetstones and aiming lanterns used by the Army Artillery for night range firing. All are on display at WAA's Atlanta Office, 699 Ponce de Leon Ave.

Bids should be submitted before Oct. 16 to E. W. Welch, WAA's surplus surplus man.

'Pure' Big Nine Acts To Save Game

The Western Conference appears on the verge of deciding that the only way to keep Junior from drinking beer is for Pop to drink it all himself.

There is a campaign on in the Big Nine at present for that conference to send its football champion against the Pacific Coast winner each year in the Rose Bowl. It appears to have a good chance of succeeding.

Those gentlemen of the Big Nine who are supporting the movement are doing so, they say, only for the one reason of combating one of the "worst commercial aspects of college football."

This group is the same outfit which has criticized Southern colleges for years for their open aid to athletes. A member of this group was quoted as saying: "The receipts from a bowl game are sufficient to finance the very type of athletic subsidies which we fight against."

If this revenue was cut off, the schools in question could not continue their wide-open athletic programs."

The amount involved, Children, is approximately $100,000. We don't want the money, but had better take it to keep you from spending it all on candy.

We get a nauseating laugh out of the whole thing, and would like to suggest the Big Nine play the game for free if its intentions are so honorable.

The Western Conference ostensibly does not give any financial aid to its athletes. It frowns upon this practice and devotes all efforts to keeping college athletics for students. This is an admirable condition.

But there's no one so naive enough as to believe that is the situation which actually exists in that league. Every coach in the Southeastern Conference could tell you of one or more football players he has lost to a Big Nine member because the pay is more than the legal amount in the Southeastern. This is done through phony "loans" or "jobs" or by alumni "taking care" of the players.

We admit that the Southeastern Conference's system is not perfect, that rules should be more stringently enforced. But we contend that all major football conferences in the nation are arriving at the same destination, although they may use different roads in getting there.

Poor Argument The Big Nine's argument that sending its champion to California would eliminate the revenue which finances athletic subsidies, doesn't hold water.

There are other financially attractive bowls in existence besides the Rose Bowl. Participants in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans get only about $25,000 less than those in the Rose and expenses for visiting teams are generally much less.

The Cotton and Orange Bowls are profitable and the Oil Bowl at Houston has plenty of money behind it.

As long as there is the present public demand for such post-season games, good football teams will have no difficulty in breaking even when they play in one.

There is no objection for the Pacific and Western Conference to enter into an agreement which will eliminate other teams from playing at Pasadena. Only danger of such a pact is the possibility the Bowl will come up with a very mediocre game some year while other post-season contests display better teams.

But even that isn't a real serious threat to the success of a game. One as established as the Rose Bowl, could feature almost any teams and still have a sellout crowd.

There has been considerable talk of the Southeastern Conference entering into such an agreement with either the New Orleans or Miami classics. However, such proposals always meet with strong opposition and it is unlikely it will take place even if the Big Nine and Pacific do sign up.

Coast Has Edge There will be those who will condemn the Pacific Conference for seeking such an agreement with the Big Nine. They will say that the Coast teams want no part of Southern eleven.

This isn't exactly true. In the past 10 games seven Southeastern and Southern Conference teams have participated in the Rose Bowl classic and the Pacific Coast representatives have won five of them. This doesn't look as if they have any mortal fear of our teams.

Only Georgia and Alabama have won in the past 10 years. Duke, Tennessee and Alabama have lost five games between them.

Since the Pacific Coast Conference eleven always represents the West in the classic, it is probable that officials desire a team representing a conference which decides its champion in the same manner—by playing the other teams in the league.

Neither the Southeastern or Southern operate in that manner. Their annual champion may back into the title by playing only four or five relative weak league members while a team playing six or seven finishes in second place by losing one game.

That we like to play in the Rose Bowl is no secret. But if anything happens to prevent us from doing so, just remember that we brought it on ourselves.

Ferriss Holds Birds To 6 Hits

By GAYLE TALBOT

FENWAY PARK, Boston, Oct. 9 (AP)—Again today large Rudy York laid his 210 sinewy pounds against a baseball and sent it soaring beyond the vision, and again the pride of Cartersville, Ga., broke the hearts of the hard-fighting St. Louis Cardinals.

Rudy's second mighty four-bagger of the World Series, delivered in the first inning with Johnny Pesky and Ted Williams on base, provided the winning runs as the Red Sox boomed to a 4 to 0 victory in their own Fenway Park and took what looked like a long 2-1 lead in the big play-off.

With Big Dave "Boo" Ferriss, Boston right-hander, choking the Cards with six widely scattered hits and not allowing a Red Bird to reach third until the last inning, it was of little or no importance that the American Leaguers shoved across another unearned run in the eighth inning off a Cardinal relief fliker.

It was Rudy's clout off Right-hander Murry Dickson that did the work. With two out and the count on him three balls and two strikes,

The veteran first baseman caught a low pitch on the button and sent it almost on a line drive over the left field wall. If anything, it was hit with greater force than the one with which he broke up the 1-0 inning opener at St. Louis three days ago.

The ball cleared the barrier just above the word "shadow" in an advertisement, and it cast a pall over the Cards which never lifted, despite the bright sunshine that sparkled all through the chilly afternoon.

In one respect, it was too bad that the Sox got to Reliever Ted Wilks for their fourth out on a pair of hits and an error by Second Baseman Red Schoendienst.

Had the game ended 3 to 0, York would have gained the distinction of being the second batter on record to have won two World Series battles outright with home runs.

SUCH RUDY BEHAVIOR

'Bugs Eye' View of Series

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

(Distributed by International News Service.)

The Duke of York scored again in Boston when the Rudy branch of the family put up some pickles for the Winter.

It was a nice 440-foot strike thrown by Dickson to the Duke with two on base and a good song ringing clear. Sixty-five feet going to the plate and 375 feet leaving.

That makes two four-stackers for the Duke this pale October, and two ball games for his private museum.

Just Tuesday I wrote that the Duke and Breen proved that teamwork is a crazy quilt of individual spasms. And the Duke and Ferriss indorsed it Wednesday.

Rudy's plan of operation was as simple as Babe Ruth's. Willie Keeler hit them where they ain't. The Babe hit them where they're never going to be. The Duke's Mixture combined the best features of both immortals and today Rudy is ne plus ultra with a dash of savoir faire.

Here's an old-timer who has personally copped both Boston wins with a set of home runs. That makes him the biggest man in Boston and he doesn't have to wear elevator shoes.

Rudy's technique for busting

RUDY, TWO GAMES; CARDS, ONE—Rudy York, the Red Sox slugger from Atco, Ga., gets a reception as he crosses the plate on his three-run homer in the third 1946 World Series game in Boston yesterday. Bobby Doerr, next batter, wrings his hand while Johnny Pesky and the Soxos batboy await their turn. Card Catcher Joe Garagiola looks on. It was York's homer in the first game, that won Boston's other victory. The Soxos won, 4 to 0.

Ends Kilzer, Busbin Out As Rebel Game Nears

By TOM MILLER.

The bad luck that has dogged the steps of the Georgia Tech football squad from season's start took another swipe at the Jackets yesterday, leaving them with the strong possibility that neither of the two starting ends will see much play against Mississippi.

Big Walt Kilzer went to the hospital Wednesday with an infected ear. He is undergoing penicillin treatment, and it is extremely doubtful if he will be able to play even though he is released before Saturday.

Bill Busbin, his ankle injured against VMI on the mend, limped off the practice field yesterday after re-injuring it in a limited defensive scrimmage against Ole Miss formations.

Coach Bobby Dodd said the loss of his two veteran wingmen "is going to hurt us a lot." The replacement load will fall on George Broadnax and Rabbit Jordan, who has been playing as much as any of the ends.

The pinch will come in reserve strength. Behind Broadnax and Jordan stand Jimmy Castleberry, who caught a touchdown pass last Saturday, and Charlie Murdoch, another letterman. Two ends off from the reserve squad, Jack Griffin, freshman, who scored one touchdown against VMI, and Joe Daniels, of LaGrange, will have to take it from there.

The Jackets drilled mainly with second stringers against the Rebel modified T-formation, which shifts Alabama style to a backfield box. The Rebels, in games so far, have done a lot of trapping for smashes at center.

Capt. Bobby Davis took an easy day in light gear, but was in his old tackle position when Dodd polished off practice by running four eleven-through signal drills.

The first eleven there had little Jimmy Jordan, transferred from right to left halfback, running in the injured Mathews' place, pairing with McHugh, Broyles, who is about ready to go at full speed after babying his injured shoulder through two rough games, was quarterbacking and Bowen completed the backbone of the "T."

Billy Williams, who has been making a spirited bid for a No. 2 assignment, alternated with McHugh on the right side.

After viewing motion pictures of last Saturday's game with VMI and pointing out team and individual errors, Coach Dodd broke precedence last night by taking the squad under the lights at Grant Field for a 30-minute signal drill.

Seeks Games

Oakland City's 115-pound football team is seeking opponents for either Saturday or Sunday games. Any interested teams in that weight classification can get in touch with Team Manager Billy Darden at RA. 5218.

FOR SON'S SAKE

Must Keep On With Grid Work--Frnka

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Tulane's Henry Frnka, returning to his coaching duties this afternoon, said he felt his son, who was fatally injured on the grid-iron last week-end, would have wished him to continue in football.

Funeral services for Henry Frnka, Jr., 17, who died in Tulsa, Okla., Sunday after injuries in a Friday night high school game, were held here this morning.

Coach Frnka issued this statement:

"Mrs. Frnka and I have been deeply moved by the sympathetic interest of our friends in the loss of our son Henry. We want them to know of our appreciation for their condolences.

"I do wish for my friends to know that we realize the tragedy that befell Henry was one that can occur in many ways in our daily living. Henry loved football; he was happiest when playing it. I know that it would have been his wish that I not hesitate in carrying on my work. The game is important in building the character of young men. I am happy to be associated with it, and I look forward to continuing to coach the young men at Tulane who play it. There are many of them to whom football means as much as it did to my son, and I am devoted to their interest."

Coach Frnka had been absent from his coaching duties since early last Saturday, when he flew to his son's bedside.

Kentucky Seeks Sub For Allen's Position

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 9.—(AP) The assignment of filling in for Halback Ernie Allen rested between two freshmen tonight as Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant and his Kentucky football squad prepared to leave for Athens, Ga., and Friday night's game with Georgia.

Bill Boller and Jim Babb were nominated to share the task after Allen's loss through ineptly became final.

Coach Bobby Dodd said the loss of his two veteran wingmen "is going to hurt us a lot." The replacement load will fall on George Broadnax and Rabbit Jordan, who has been playing as much as any of the ends.

The pinch will come in reserve strength. Behind Broadnax and Jordan stand Jimmy Castleberry, who caught a touchdown pass last Saturday, and Charlie Murdoch, another letterman. Two ends off from the reserve squad, Jack Griffin, freshman, who scored one touchdown against VMI, and Joe Daniels, of LaGrange, will have to take it from there.

The Jackets drilled mainly with second stringers against the Rebel modified T-formation, which shifts Alabama style to a backfield box. The Rebels, in games so far, have done a lot of trapping for smashes at center.

Capt. Bobby Davis took an easy day in light gear, but was in his old tackle position when Dodd polished off practice by running four eleven-through signal drills.

The first eleven there had little Jimmy Jordan, transferred from right to left halfback, running in the injured Mathews' place, pairing with McHugh, Broyles, who is about ready to go at full speed after babying his injured shoulder through two rough games, was quarterbacking and Bowen completed the backbone of the "T."

Billy Williams, who has been making a spirited bid for a No. 2 assignment, alternated with McHugh on the right side.

After viewing motion pictures of last Saturday's game with VMI and pointing out team and individual errors, Coach Dodd broke precedence last night by taking the squad under the lights at Grant Field for a 30-minute signal drill.

Marist and Commercial Vie at Ponce de Leon

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Marist College and Commercial High will open the high school football weekend at 8 o'clock tonight at Ponce de Leon Park, and fans are going to have a good view of a tilt at the Cracker ball yard for the first time this year since the grid field has been laid out on the infield as it was last year instead of in the far reaches of the outfield.

Both teams have taken it on the chin considerably this year as they have numbered among their opponents the toughest eleven in the State, but Bill Kirkland's Cadets pulled the upset of 1946 in trimming Lanier, 13-6, in Macon.

The Typists have bowed to Boys High, 55-0; Cedartown, 30-7; Cartersville, 33-0; and Decatur, 34-6. However, they smothered the Fulton Redbirds, 21-0, and Coach O. E. Owen considers tonight's game a toss-up.

Marist lost to Tech High, 33-0; GMA, 13-0; and Jordan, 31-8, and has beaten Lanier. Capt. Ed Hunt broke his leg this week and will be out with Bubber Tietz acting as team captain.

Purples To Meet Unbeaten Jesuit

Boys High will be tangling with an unbeaten team when they tackle Jesuit's Blue Jays Saturday night in New Orleans. Coach G. Gernon Brown's Jays have thrashed Pensacola, 24-6; Baton Rouge, 41-14, and St. Aloysius, of New Orleans, 13-0. The latter tilt drew 22,000 fans.

Brown's charges have won four State championships and five city titles in football since 1933. They copied State crowns in 1933, 1935, 1940, 1941 and 1943.

Brown is one of the outstanding coaches in the South, having been connected with Jesuit since 1916. A knee injury forced him from Annapolis in the late teens. He has been head coach of the Jay eleven since 1933, and was baseball coach there until signing as a scout with the New York Giants last year.

Just as was the case with Shorty Doval's Boys High eleven, his 1945 grid team lost only to Holy Cross, Louisiana State champions.

Ten of 11 Jesuit starters are seniors, with John Pettibone, the only non-senior, being rated one of the finest all-around backs ever to play in the Bayou State.

Five members of the grid team played on Jesuit's world championship American Legion baseball nine this year. That team won the Southeastern tournament in Atlanta before sailing on to cop national honors.

Hapeville, Marietta Tilt Shifted to College Park

The Hapeville-Marietta football game, which originally was slated to be the dedication game for the new Hapeville Field, has been shifted to the College Park Field at 8 p. m. Friday. Some of the Hapeville lighting equipment which was being installed proved faulty and it will be another week or so before the lights will be ready.

Big Nine Balloting on Contract To Supply Rose Bowl Opponent

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A five-year contract, whereby the Western Conference would gain unprecedented prestige as well as lush cash returns by controlling the selection of teams to meet the Pacific Coast representative in the Rose Bowl, is being put to a vote for rejection or approval by the nine conference members.

Rose Bowl Blasted By Frank Thomas

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 9.—(UP)—Coach Frank Thomas, of Alabama, which has sent six teams to the Rose Bowl, said today he could not "help but wonder what would have happened to the Rose Bowl if it had depended on the Big Nine during the last 25 years."

Thomas was commenting on the Western conference's reported plan to make a tie-up with the Pacific Coast Conference and send its champion to the Pasadena classic. It seems rather late in the game for the Rose Bowl suddenly to become so exclusive, Thomas said.

Boys' Club Gridders Meet Ramblers Tonight

The Battle Hill Ramblers football team will play the Boys Club tonight at 8 o'clock on the Boys Club field. Both clubs are in the 150-pound league.

Ohio State, Iowa and Indiana were reported unofficially to favor the post-season football arrangement. The only definite action, however, has been taken by the Illinois faculty senate which voted disapproval. Illinois probably will be joined on the negative side by Minnesota and possibly Purdue. There is no hint from Northwestern or Wisconsin, although the former voted no when Ohio State sought to play in the Rose Bowl in 1944.

The faculty committees governing athletics have been asked by the Big Nine faculty committee to decide the question and most of them are expected to call meetings within the next two weeks. If the vote is favorable the Rose Bowl tieup could become effective in ample time for the game next New Year's Day.

The contract, if approved, would embody these provisions:

1. It would be a five-year agreement between the two conferences.
2. Each conference will designate its representative team.
3. No school would be compelled to participate.
4. No conference members would participate more than once in three years.
5. During the first three years

2 VOLS TOUCHED TD PASS—WADE

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 9.—(UP)—All "water over the dam" as far as Coach Wallace Wade, of Duke, is concerned, but just to keep the record straight two Tennessee ends did touch the ball on the pass play that gave the Vols a 12-7 victory over the Blue Devils here last Saturday and moving pictures of the game prove it.

"Our pictures show that Tennessee's right end, Huddleston, touched the ball in the end zone before it was caught by Left End Hubbell," Wade said. "The whole thing is immaterial to us."

After viewing Tennessee's movies of the game, Coach Bob Neyland said the pictures showed that Hubbell juggled the ball, but "I couldn't tell whether Huddleston touched it."

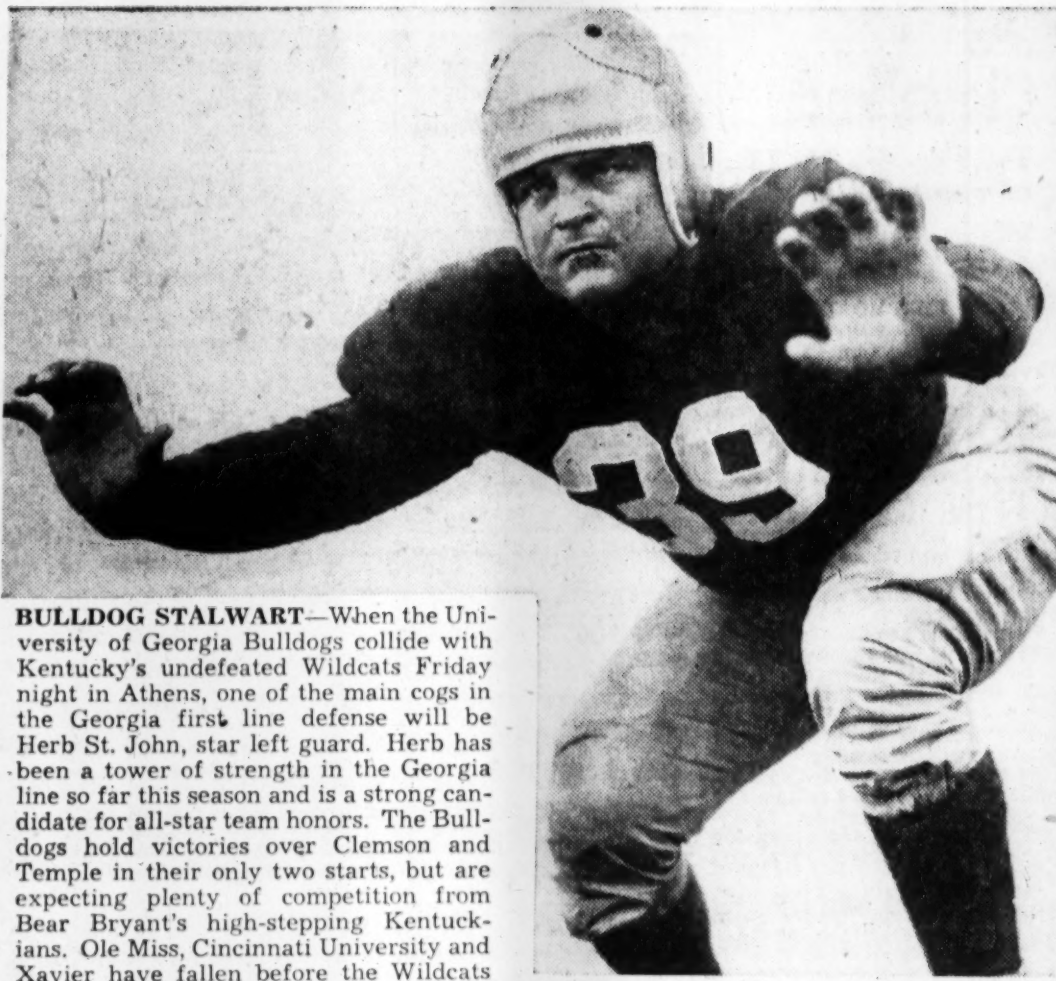

only a Western Conference university would participate and for the remaining two years any university designated by the Big Nine could be named (thus Notre Dame, Michigan State and Marquette could represent the Midwest if the Conference so desired. Notre Dame, which follows closely Big Nine standards, has made one appearance in the Rose Bowl, beating Stanford 27-10 in 1927.

6. Payment of expenses plus a certain share of the receipts, to be split equally among the Big Nine members.

7. Limited pre-game practice periods.

8. The game to be played entirely under the auspices of the two conferences, although the Big Nine could name any university it chose as Western representative. This naturally would mean, an official said, that universities to be selected must conform to the Western Conference regulations.

Alfred R. Masters, general athletic manager at Stanford, and Clinton W. Davis, manager of athletics at the University of California, expressed hope that the Big Nine would accept the proposed hookup. Unofficially, it was believed the Pacific Coast Conference would unanimously agree to the pact.

Rudy York's Homer Puts Red Sox Out Front

Giants, did it against the Yankees in the 1923 play-off.

York's achievement was only slightly more glittering than that of his husky young teammate, Ferriss. In registering his 14th straight triumph at Fenway Park for the season against no defeats, the sophomore star from Shaw, Miss., simply overpowered the Red Birds all the way.

The only time he was even threatened with a score was in the ninth, when, with two down, Stan Musial stacked a line triple against the bullpen in right field. Equal to the occasion, Ferriss bore down and struck out the dangerous Enos Slaughter, to close out the game and send a crowd of 34,500 home happy. It was only Ferriss' second strikeout of the game, and possibly indicated that he had worked with considerable in reserve.

The game otherwise was notable for the fact that Ted Williams finally laid down a perfect bunt against the "overbalanced" infield defense with which the Cards had plagued him in the first two games, and that Second Baseman Bobby Doerr of the Sox tied a World Series record by handling eight assists.

Ferriss' shutout, his seventh of the season, was the 50th in World Series history. Harry Brecheen of the Cards rang up No. 49 in blanking the Sox in the second game on Monday.

But for that one luckless pitch to York, the 155-pound Dickson was entirely effective against the American League sluggers. From the first inning through the seventh, only one other Boston player reached third off the frail-appearing righthander. That was Pinky Higgins in the second, on a walk, a sacrifice and a passed ball. After that Dickson mowed Joe Cronin's boys down, giving up only Williams' bunt, a single by Doerr in the fourth, a double by Dom DiMaggio in the fifth and a futile single by Johnny Pesky in the seventh.

Tomorrow's fourth game might well see the great pitching streak extended. "Tex" Hugheson, the towering righthander who opposed Howie Pollet in the opener at St. Louis, was due to come back at the Cards with his blazing fast ball, and Manager Eddie Dyer nominated George Munger, also a righty.

Chandler No. 2 Center As Bulldogs Scrimmage

ATHENS, Oct. 9.—The Georgia Bulldogs wound up rough work for Friday night's Southeastern Conference engagement with Kentucky today with both offensive and defensive scrimmages.

The squad, which was forced indoors by rain yesterday, looked ragged on offense today. With even the Bulldogs' aerial attack, which has been its main weapon so far this season, looking far from ready, the junior varsity, using Kentucky formations, was too successful on the offensive against Bulldog regulars.

Improvement of Freshman Gene Chandler at center has brought the Atlanta pivotman to the second-string spot behind Mike Cooley. Chandler, who made All-Southern while prepping at Tech High, turned in his best game against Temple last week.

He's a 190-pounder and stands 6 feet 2. Inexperience is his main weakness. But as the season progresses, he'll be invaluable as a relief to Cooley, still bothered by a weak knee. Center is one of the club's weakest spots, with Cooley as the only capable snapper back.

Earlier, another freshman, John

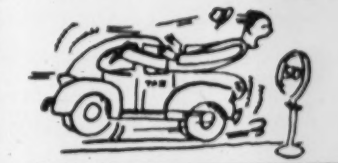

Terry, was shifted from tackle, but failed to develop and now is back at his original spot. He'll see plenty of action there. In addition to Cooley and Chandler, the Bulldogs have Joe Chesna, Jerry Deski, Clayton Devers and Chuck Palmer.

Jack Bush, regular tackle, Cooley and Mel Bray, reserve fullback, missed the rough work today. But all three will be ready for the Wildcats, Al Bodine, who played his first game against Temple, will be around to help Bray relieve Dick McPhee at the fullback spot.

The Bulldogs will probably start the same lineup Friday which opened the season's first two games.

Mrs. W. D. Tumlin, the defending champion in the AWGA's annual Maier & Berkele handicapped tournament, led the advance of favorites into the second round of play in the 1946 meet yesterday at the Druid Hills Golf Club. Mrs. Tumlin defeated Mrs. L. H. Kelley, 5-4.

Second round matches will be played today starting at 9:30 a. m. The driving, approaching and putting contests are scheduled for Friday afternoon.

Yesterday's results:
Mrs. C. C. Sloan defeated Mrs. T. R. Stalton, 1-0; 19 holes; Mrs. R. T. Hulse defeated Mrs. Albert Donaud, 8-7; Mrs. H. F. Weidman defeated Miss Peggy Gude by default; Mrs. Tumlin defeated Mrs. Kelley, 5-4; Mrs. Ralph Apple defeated Mrs. T. F. Branch, 6-5; Mrs. Roger Martin defeated Mrs. W. S. Eakin by default.

Today's pairings:
Mrs. Sloan vs. Miss Louise Cagle; Mrs. Hulse vs. Mrs. J. C. Wright; Mrs. Weidman vs. Mrs. C. D. Fields; Mrs. W. S. Smith vs. Mrs. Joe Wilburn; Mrs. Tumlin vs. Mrs. T. B. Robertson; Mrs. Apple vs. Mrs. Fred Ballinger; Mrs. Martin vs. Mrs. Morton Bright and Mrs. E. McGinty vs. Mrs. G. E. Montague.

Bryant Wants Allen as Aide

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 9.—(UP)—Head Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant of the University of Kentucky said today he would recommend appointment of star Halfback Ernie Allen as an assistant on his staff.

The action came soon after an announcement from Dr. John J. Tigert, President of the Southeastern Conference, that Conference members had voted to uphold an Executive Committee ruling that Allen was ineligible for SEC play.

University Pres. H. L. Donovan said the school had carried the case to the "court of last resort" and had been overruled, and "we shall accept the decision as final." The school contended that the flashy back was eligible under a wartime ruling permitting a team member four years of varsity play.

Carnera Tackles Strongbow Friday

Primo Carnera, the 265-pound former world's boxing champion, will be making his second appearance in an Atlanta ring when he wrestles Jules Strongbow, the Oklahoma Indian who gave Bibber McCoy such a working-over on last week's card before a capacity house, at the City Auditorium Friday night. Unlike last week, popular prices will be in effect.

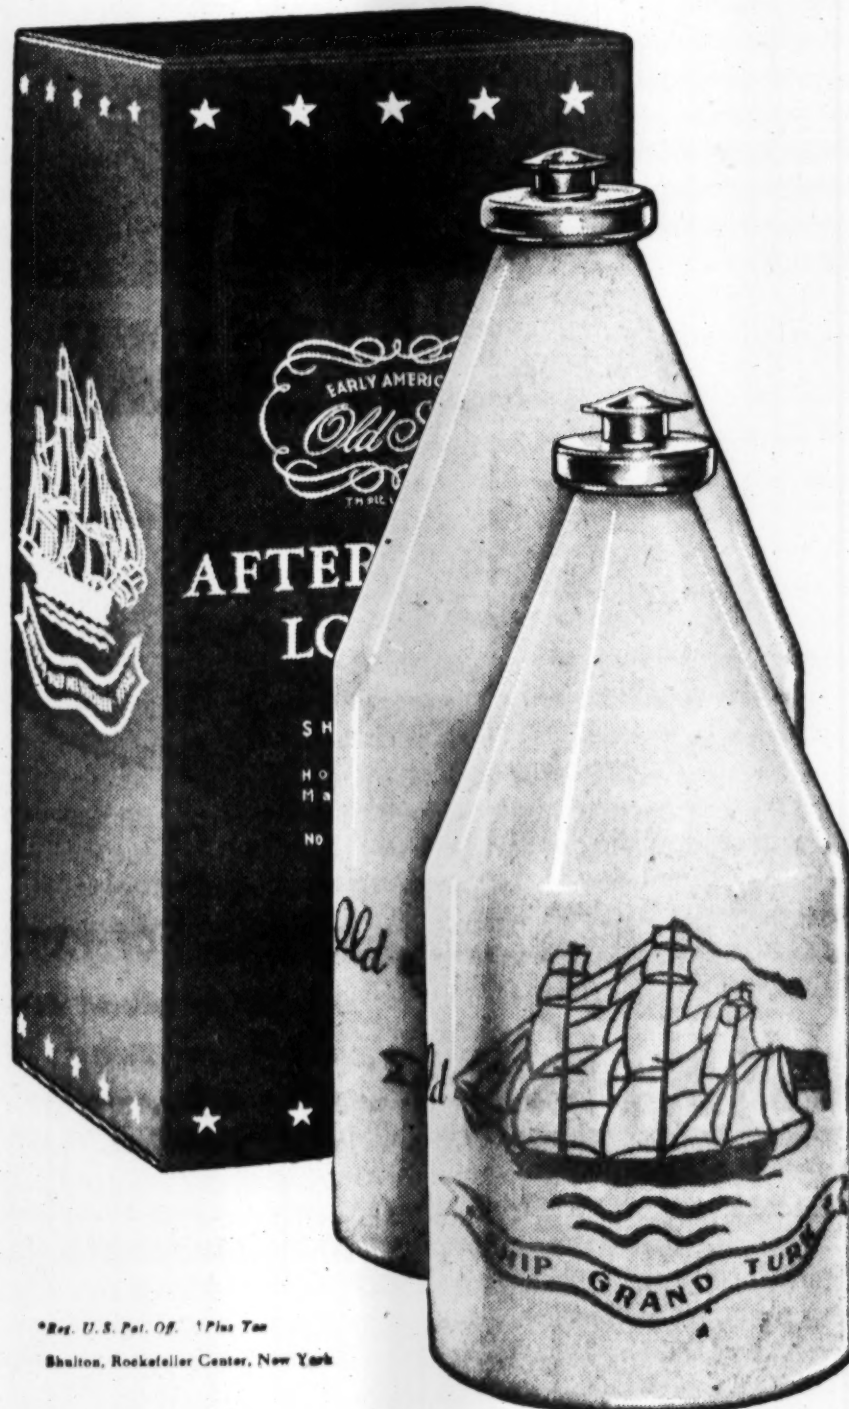

"Da Preem" is six feet eight inches tall and wears a size 20 shoe. Promoter Paul Jones anticipates another capacity crowd.

Jimmy Coffield and Don McIntyre will battle in the semi-wind-up; Nelle Stewart and Ann Miller will vie in one match and Juanita Coffman in another. Tom Mahoney and Al Massey will be pitted in the opener at 8:30 p. m.

Male Purples Set for Tech Here Friday

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 9.—Male really wants to win this battle coming up with Tech, of Atlanta, on the Georgians' home grounds Friday night.

The Purples still wear a black eye as a result of the 26-0 shellacking they took from Chattanooga Central in their opening game here. The 20-0 win they took from Erie, Pa., slightly assuaged their grief but the triumph over Charlotte, N. C., Central last Friday didn't boost the Purples' stock at all. Paul Jenkins' Bulldogs were lucky to get past the Tarheels and the statistics showed an overwhelming advantage for Charlotte.

Male employs the Warner single wing on offense with an unbalanced line. Sherman Robinson, fullback, and Bill Giannini, tailback, carry the brunt of the ball carrying. Giannini, an ex-GI, also

PLUTO OLIVER SOLD TO SOLONS

Pluto Oliver, Decatur athlete who became one of the greatest pitchers in Georgia Tech history, was in Atlanta yesterday after a successful season with Charlotte of the Tri-State League and sale to the Washington Senators.

Starting seven weeks late after Army service, Oliver won 16 and lost five games as Charlotte won the pennant and play-offs. He said Clark Griffith, Washington owner, told him three days ago to report to the Senators' Spring training camp.

Oliver plans to stay in Atlanta for the Tech-Ole Miss game before going to Los Angeles, where he has a Winter job at the North American aircraft factory.

throws most of the passes and does all the kicking.

The quarterback is Boots Heckman; the blocking, Jack Kleier, Robinson is the only letterman in the backfield, although Giannini has shown considerable improvement. The Male backfield will average 170 pounds.

There are only two holdovers in the Male line—Guard and Captain Bill Crouch and Center Jerry Lloyd. The Purple forwards will average about 185 pounds if End Dan Hunt starts instead of End Bob Thorne. The tackles and ends are inexperienced and the reserves can almost be counted out.

Last year's Male team won both the Kentucky and Southern championships in compiling a record of eight victories against one loss. The setback was a one-touchdown upset by Newark, Ohio.

Sinkwich To Play Against Cleveland

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Frank Sinkwich, one-time top player of the National Football League when he was with the Detroit Lions, will very definitely be in the lineup of the New York Yankees when they play Cleveland in the Yankee Stadium here Saturday night.

The locals were whipped by the unbeaten pupils of Paul Brown a few weeks back, 24 to 7, in Cleveland, but Cleveland is due for a fall and the new pro league is getting about ready to level off.

San Francisco Batters Miami Seahawks, 34-7

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Some changes in the Miami Seahawks professional football team were predicted today after the birds bowed to the San Francisco 49ers in their first home game of the season in the Orange Bowl last night, 34-7.

The 49ers handed the Seahawks their fourth straight All-America Conference defeat before a slim turnout of 7,621 and gained 204 yards by rushing against only 41 for the home team.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Walter Johnson, one-time strike-out ace of the American League, was in "unchanged" condition today at Georgetown Hospital after rallying from a weekend relapse.

Cleveland Dolls Self Up For Industry

By BILL BORING, Constitution Staff Writer

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—Tiny Cleveland doll'd herself up, put a mountain flower in her hair, and went on the make today. She was hoping to hear a long, low whistle—from industry.

If she does, it will be her first, for industry consistently has passed the little town by. Just why, Cleveland never suspected until one of her best friends told her. "Your elbows are dirty, Sis, and your slip's showing," an industrial friend confided.

That was hard to take, but Cleveland knew it was so. She decided to do something about it. Mayor E. J. Huff called a town meeting and the people were told the hard facts. "Industry is passing us by because our face is dirty."

So Cleveland resolved to take a bath. The meeting set aside a day of general house cleaning. Everything would close and everybody would take up a broom, rake, mop or paint brush.

"We'll give the town that well-scrubbed look. We'll be the cleanest, most beautiful town in Georgia," the people resolved.

Wednesday was the day. Everything closed, as tight as a drum, and everybody went to work. They cleaned vacant lots, painted store fronts, washed windows, removed chewing gum from sidewalks. They really gave the town a cleaning.

Now Cleveland is asking industry to call, and she's making it easy for industry in still another way. She needs a factory badly. A survey shows there are 500 unemployed in the vicinity since all the timber has been cleared and the sawmills are shutting down. The boys are home now, home from the war, and Cleveland wants to keep them at home.

So the town has authorized an industrial development corporation. Citizens have subscribed stock. Five thousand dollars is already in the till and up to $200,000 is authorized. The money will be used to build or purchase a building for an industry, if it should happen to come.

"We're expecting one, too," says Mayor Huff. "That's all we need—tidy ourselves up," the industrialists told us. Industry likes a clean, wholesome place and it will avoid a dirty town like the plague.

Cleveland is not only clean Wednesday—she's going to stay clean. The town has been organized into wards with a committee charged with keeping each ward clean and beautifying it.

These committees will vie with one another in beautification. Shrubbery will be planted, vacant lots will be kept clean and planted in winter and summer grasses. Heading this "clean-up" organization is Sheriff Lat Vandiver. Ward leaders are Clifford Blalock, Ed Head and Thomas Mauney.

Court Sessions Close

ALBANY, Oct. 9.—The October term of United States Court, which opened here Monday morning, adjourned Tuesday after slightly less than an hour's session. The passing of sentences consumed most of last morning's session.

CLEVELAND CLEANS UP—A squadron pitches in to make a vacant lot beautiful as Cleveland, mountain municipality in White County, set Wednesday aside as a general holiday in which everyone joined in cleaning the town. With a clean face, Cleveland is going after industry. She needs a factory to employ her citizens.

Contract Is Let On Memorial Rd.

Work on a new road, rerouted to encircle part of Stone Mountain and make possible completion of Stone Mountain Memorial, will begin soon, according to Col. Moses E. Cox, state highway engineer, who yesterday announced the letting of a $21,000 contract to DeKalb County to begin draining, clearing and grading for the road.

The new road, when completed, will provide a virtually straight road four and three-tenths miles long to take the place of the present curving road. Cox emphasized the $21,000 contract would cover only a part of the work needed for the proposed new highway and added the expense of clearing the entire stretch would approach $200,000.

Airmail Weight To GIs Upped

Now you can send fatter letters and bulkier packages to that fella overseas.

Seventh Army Headquarters and Postmaster Lon Livingston have announced an increase in the weight limit of air mail letters and parcels to members of the armed forces stationed outside the continental limits of the United States. Formerly, the limit was two ounces. Now letters and parcels may weigh up to eight ounces, it was announced yesterday.

Lucky servicemen with APO's in care of Postmasters of Miami, New Orleans, and Seattle may receive parcels weighing up to 70 pounds, the Army said.

Livingston reminded that the new five-cent per ounce air mail rate supersedes the six-cent per half-ounce rate formerly applicable to overseas mail.

Bird Club Slates Audubon Series On Wildlife

The Atlanta Bird Club in cooperation with the National Audubon Society will present a program of natural history and conservation lectures here beginning in December and continuing for five months, it was announced at the Atlanta Bird Club meeting last night.

The series, known as Audubon Screen Tours, embraces many aspects of wildlife and conservation of birds, animals, forests and the land that supports them.

The Audubon Screen Tours will be presented at the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club, beginning Dec. 5, when John H. Storer will show his film, "Wings, Fins and Antlers." Other lecturers are as follows: Olin Sewall Pettingill, Jan. 10; Bert Harwell, Feb. 1; Laurel Reynolds, March 8; and Karl Maslowski, April 8. Mrs. Athos Menaboni is Chairman of the project in Atlanta.

Principal speaker at last night's meeting was Howard Sampson, nationally known taxidermist.

Britain Extends Regrets to Slavs In Plane Case

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(UP)—The British Foreign Office admitted today that Britain failed to obtain formal clearance for an RAF courier plane flying from Yugoslavia to Italy which landed at Nish when approached by Yugoslav fighter planes.

The announcement said the British plane landed "voluntarily" in accordance with instructions to land on the nearest field when approached by fighter aircraft, and was not forced down.

The announcement said that Charles Peake, British Ambassador to Belgrade, had expressed regrets to Marshal Tito over failure to obtain formal clearance for the plane.

J. HENRY BLAIR—
New East Point Mayor.

Elected Mayor, Grandson Born, —Blair's Happy

J. Henry Blair, 44, signalman for the Atlanta Terminal and five times member of the East Point City Council, yesterday extended "sincere thanks" to several thousand fellow townsmen who braved a rainy day to go out and elect him their Mayor.

Blair will take office the first Tuesday night in January, succeeding E. G. Laney.

The Mayor-elect, a resident of 284 Bryan Ave., East Point, is a native of Atlanta, and has lived in the Third Ward in East Point most of his life. He ran on a platform calling for the extension of sewerage lines and water mains and the improvement of parks and streets.

As a Councilman from the Third Ward, Blair worked to get a fire station in that section and various street improvements as well as campaigning for the extension of the City limits.

Two family developments coincided with Blair's campaign. His first grandson, Michael Eugene Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Thomas, was born, and his son, J. H. Blair, Jr., a flight officer in the Eighth Air Force, arrived home with his bride, Lt. Blair and the former Miss Lorraine Karala were married in Washington a week ago.

numerous quick-freeze units installed in private homes by good providers.

United Butchers' Abattoir kills meat for six or seven wholesale meat houses in Atlanta, including Star Provision, J. M. Moore, Louis Abel, Abe Gilner and Jacob Zimmerman as well as at independent grocer customers.

Their cooler was about a quarter full of meat killed yesterday, which they said would be gone by this morning. Some of it was prime beef, some grade A veal, but most of it represented canning and cutter cows which go into sausage for the national diet.

"Where does it all go?" they repeated. "It goes to meat markets. There is some meat sold every day. You may just be one of the folks not getting it."

They were enigmatic about Dr. Graydon's statement that much meat is being killed in Atlanta every day. They kill, they said, about half as much as their quota, maybe less.

Asked why they could kill even half their quota when large packinghouses say it can't be done profitably under OPA, there were raised eyebrows, shrugged shoulders, smiles, but no direct answer.

Even the big packers are getting meat, a little of it, they countered, "and they are shipping it to their customers. You must be just one of the customers that don't know anyone very well."

The words black market are verboten in meat circles, but every innocent bystander is ready with a flip comment on how easy it is to get whatever the appetite demands, if only one knows the routine and the right folks.

"And don't let anyone tell you the black market folks are pushing OPA around" observed one, who covered up his name.

"They're the very ones that like it. They might yell, but they're writing letters to their Congressmen to keep the lid on. They're getting offa OPA."

Executives Talk Beautiful Girls-- Pro and Con

The men who boss 3,000 of the most beautiful girls in the world were scratching their heads in bafflement here yesterday.

Directors of passenger service of almost every air line in the country, meeting at the Atlanta Hotel, solved easily most of their mutual aerial problems, but they bogged down when it came to this two-edged teaser:

"Shall we hire only beautiful girls as air line hostesses? Or shall we employ less attractive stewardesses whom we can keep on the job longer?"

No solution to that one had been reached, as of the last communique. Don Maggerrall, Vice President in charge of passenger service for United Airlines, said that the present high marriage rate of beautiful hostesses and stewardesses is resulting in a constant demand for new ones.

"But as for me," said he, "I would prefer to keep them beautiful, despite the turnover."

The majority of the air lines now employ both stewards and stewardesses, Maggerrall said. A recent survey revealed that 80 percent of the passengers prefer stewardesses.

"We later found," said Maggerrall, "that about 80 percent of those questioned were men."

There may be some correlation there!

Other problems confronting the air industry regarding services rendered to passengers include the procurement of food—$10,000,000 worth of it was served in the air last year—and the standardization of services offered mothers with babies.

Maggerrall and John L. Sutton, of Delta Air Lines in Atlanta, who was elected Chairman of the Passenger Service Committee of the Air Transport Association, said that the week of Nov. 10 will be observed by the air industry as

"National Clean-Up Washrooms Week."

Air lines represented at the Air Transport Association meeting which will end today include: Delta, Eastern, Pennsylvania Central, Mid-Continent, Northeast, Transcontinental and Western, United, Chicago and Southern, American, and Braniff International.

State Tax Receipts Below Expectations

State tax collections for the past three months fell short of an expected $6,000,000 increase but are still sufficient to assure school teachers their salary raise, State Revenue Commissioner M. E. Thompson said yesterday.

The Revenue Department collected $19,635,199 in the last quarter, an increase of $5,422,755 over the same period in 1945.

Motor fuel tax revenue attained an all-time high in September of $2,882,750, but the greatest single increase was in liquor taxes—from $368,442 in September, 1945, to $1,502,881 last month.

Mrs. Reynolds Left $497,000 Estate

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Evalyn McLean Reynolds, 24, who died Sept. 20 from an accidental overdose of a sleeping potion, left an estate of $497,000.

A petition for administration of the estate, filed Wednesday, said there was no will. Under the law, her husband, former Sen. Robert Reynolds, of North Carolina, will receive one-third and their four-year-old daughter, Mamie Spears Reynolds, two-thirds of the estate.

The petition listed debts totaling $107,000, mostly in taxes, and said the main item in the estate was $437,000 in stock of the Inquirer Building Co., Cincinnati.

Mrs. Reynolds was the daughter of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, owner of the fabulous Hope diamond and famous for social and diplomatic gatherings at her home in Washington.

May Remove 'Frog Man' To New York

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 9.—(AP)—U. S. Commissioner Roger Edward Davis Wednesday recommended the removal of Antonio Navarro Fernandez, described by the FBI as an international swindler known as "The Frog Man," to New York for trial on a charge of transporting $120,000 which he had obtained by fraud.

M. O. Dunning, attorney for five corporations in Washington, D. C., Georgia and South Carolina, attended the hearing and identified Fernandez as the man who obtained the money.

He said the $120,000 was delivered to "The Frog Man" on July 24 this year and several days later the FBI uncovered the transaction as a fraud.

A. D. Hubbard, Fernandez's attorney, brought out that Dunning had attached $100,000 of Fernandez's money now in the Corn Exchange Bank of New York City.

Judge Holland must sign the actual extradition papers.

Miss Wootten, Once Librarian In Capital, Dies

Miss Katherine Hinton Wootten, of Atlanta and Washington, D. C., died yesterday in an Atlanta hospital after a long illness.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Greenberg & Flinn. Miss Wootten served for many years as librarian of the Carnegie Library. She later became the chief librarian of the War College Library in Washington, D. C., and served there until her retirement in 1940, when she moved back to Atlanta. She was a member of the Sacred Heart Church, Daughters of the American Revolution, the UDC, the Uncle Remus Association, the Atlanta Historical Society and the Colonial Dames.

She is survived by Mrs. Maybelle Henning, Mrs. Katherine Jones, Edward Lynch, Mrs. Herman Agricola and Mrs. Lizzie Bloomfield, of Atlanta, and Mrs. William Warner and Mr. and Mrs. Julian Thomas, of Nashville, Tenn., all cousins.

Harry Cody Hoke, 58, Dies at His Home

Harry Cody Hoke, 58-year-old former employee of the College Park Post Office, died yesterday at his residence in College Park after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the First Baptist Church, Hapeville, with the Rev. Z. E. Barron officiating. Burial will be at Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Hoke, a native of Greenville, had resided for 50 years in College Park and was a member of the First Baptist Church of Hapeville and the Masons.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Stanley Bledsoe and Mrs. C. T. Gilbert, both of Atlanta.

Mrs. Esther D. Adams Dies at Residence

Mrs. Esther D. Adams, a resident of Atlanta for 40 years, died yesterday at her residence at 44 Third St. N. E.

Funeral services and burial are to be in Newman.

Mrs. Adams is survived by one brother, W. H. Dunbar, of Eufaula, Ala., and one sister, Miss Bernice Dunbar, of Hogsansville.

New Garsson Evidence Offered

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(UP). Justice Department lawyers, armed with new evidence, will go before a special Federal Grand Jury Thursday to present the Government's case against the Garsson brothers and their $78,000,000 munitions combine.

A Justice Department official said there were "six and possibly seven alleged violations of the Federal code in the Garsson case, including conspiracy, bribery and theft."

The Midwest "paper empire," headed by Henry Garsson and his brother, Murray, was investigated by the Senate War Investigating Committee for alleged war profiteering. It was testified before the group that Chairman Andrew J. May, Democrat, Kentucky, of the House Military Affairs Committee, served as "guardian angel" of the combine and used his influence to obtain Government war contracts for the Garssons.

Many Parties Planned for Emory 'Rush'

"Rushing" at Emory University starts this weekend and will continue through the following week. Pledge day is Sunday, Oct. 19. Today announcement is made of the parties planned by the fraternities for their rushees.

The Chi Phi's will begin their rushing with a scavenger hunt Friday evening at the home of Barrett Howell, on W. Wesley Road. On Saturday evening the fraternity has planned a barn dance at Fritz Orr's, on Nancy Creek Road. Sunday there will be a tea for the rushees and their dates.

The following weekend there will be a party at the home of John Coggins, on W. Wesley Road, Friday evening, and on Saturday the Tech Chapter has offered its house for a tea dance.

The SAE Fraternity will give a banquet at the Colonial Terrace on Friday evening, which will be followed by a dance at the Fraternity house. On Saturday evening the SAEs are having, what they call, a glorified house dance and game party, and on Sunday afternoon they are holding open house at the home of Billy Bills, on Sussex Road.

The following weekend the SAEs will give a house dance with a colored orchestra Friday evening. The next day there will be a breakfast, and a honky-tonk party that evening with make-believe money for gambling. The couple that has the most money at the end of the party will receive a prize.

The Phi Delta Theta Fraternity has announced parties for this weekend only. Friday evening there will be a house dance where the new sponsor will be announced. On Saturday evening there will be a barn dance, with a hillbilly band and a professional caller. The dance will be held at Sam Smith's farm.

"CANDLELIGHT CLUB"

On Friday evening the Sigma Chi Fraternity will hold the Sigma Chi "Candlelight Club," and on Saturday there will be a caravan supper. The brothers and rushees will drive to the houses of the different alumni for each course of the supper.

The following Friday there will be a house dance, on Saturday an alumni smoker, and on Sunday there will be a buffet dinner.

The Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity will start rush week off with a barbecue, and a play will be given afterwards by the members. Following the play there will be a dance. On Saturday there will be a chicken supper and a barn dance. This will not be like a regular barn dance, however, for although everyone will be dressed in blue jeans, popular music will be presented.

On the following Friday there will be a Monte Carlo party, complete with decorations. A honky-tonk party will be given Saturday, with the Fraternity brothers presenting a floor show for the entertainment of the rushees.

On Friday, Oct. 25, the ATOs will give a banquet for their pledges.

The Kappa Alpha Fraternity has already started rushing, for on Tuesday there was a buffet dinner, with another one tonight. At both dinners the KAs honored the alumni, faculty members and rushees. On Friday there will be a showboat party. A talent show will be given Saturday, followed by a house dance.

On the following Tuesday and Thursday evenings there will be buffet suppers. Friday there will be a burlesque show, entitled "Mission to Minsky's," which will be followed by a house dance. An old-fashioned melodrama with skits by the Fraternity brothers will take place Saturday night.

CASINO PARTY PLANNED

The Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity will continue its parties begun during the Summer. On Friday the members will have a casino party. During the evening there will be numerous surprises. On Saturday they have planned a sport dance and a program will be presented by the brothers.

Only one party has been planned for the following weekend and that will be a wiener roast at the home of Walter Brown, on Peachtree Road.

A steak fry will start off the Sigma Nu parties, which will be followed by a house dance with a harvest motif on Friday. Saturday evening there will be an informal house dance, and on Tuesday there will be a buffet supper for the brothers and rushees.

Friday week there will be a barbecue, and Saturday there will be a starlight house dance. An open house will be held on Sunday, which is pledge day.

The Delta Tau Delta Fraternity has announced a semi-formal dance Friday, a sport dance Saturday, and an open house Sunday afternoon.

On Friday of the following week there will be a hayride. Lil Abner style, to Bill and Jim Ridley's farm, near Tucker, where a party will take place. On Saturday there will be a buffet dinner and a house dance.

The Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity has planned a dance Saturday at the AAA Educational Center, on Tenth Street, and on the following weekend there will be a stag party Friday at 1621 Harvard Road. On Saturday there will be a dance at the Atlantan Hotel for the brothers, rushees and their dates.

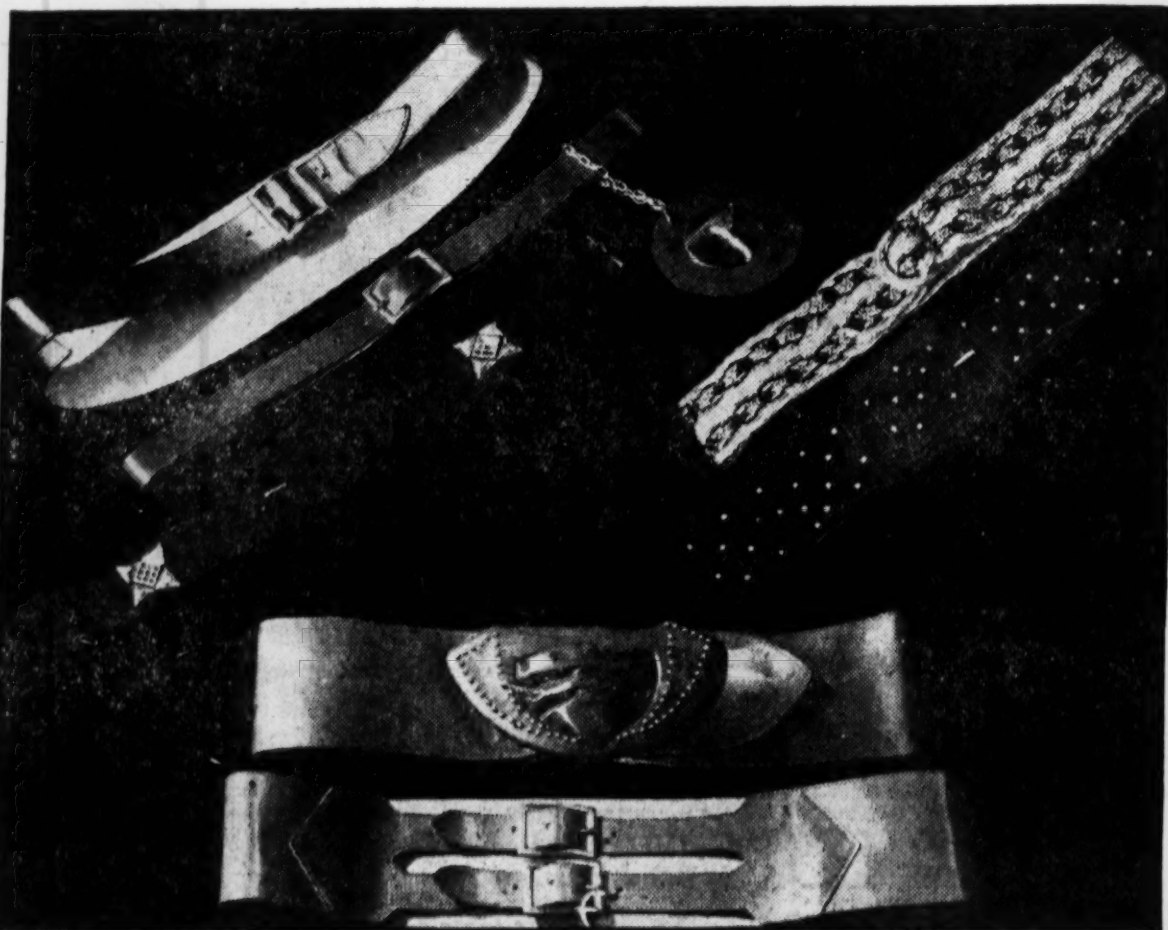

Lakewood Heights Club

The Lakewood Heights Woman's Club will meet Friday at 2:30 p. m. at the South Bend Community House. Mrs. Floyd C. Smith, Public Welfare Chairman, will be in charge of the program. Hostesses will be Mrs. T. E. Compton and Mrs. T. E. Jordan.

Temples-Cheek

Mrs. and Mrs. R. C. Temples, of Hartwell, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sarah Margaret, to Charles Edward Cheek, of Canon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burruss Cheek, of Canon. The marriage to take place at an early date.

Brilliant Ceremony Unites Miss Thiesen, Mr. Reynolds

One of the most brilliant wedding ceremonies of the autumn season was that at which Miss Jacqueline Couper Thiesen became the bride of Herbert Lindley Reynolds, Jr., last evening at All Saints Episcopal Church. The service, which was witnessed by a fashionable assemblage of society, was performed by Rev. Matthew Warren Joseph Ragan, at the organ, and the vested choir presented the music.

The altar, which was graced with white chrysanthemums, cacti dahlias, white gladioli and sigillax and banked with woodwardia fern, and palms, was illumined by myriads of burning white tapers.

Ushers included the bride's uncles, James M. Couper and C. Thomas Dunham; George T. Northen; James E. Reynolds, Jr.; and John A. Shields, brothers of the bride, John Oliver, George W. McCarty and James J. Ragan.

BRIDAL PERSONNEL

Zahner Reynolds was his brother's best man, and the groomsmen were: Traylor Thiesen, the bride's brother; G. Arthur Howell, Jr.; Walter Elcock, Jr.; Hoke Smith, Thornton Kennedy, and William Akers, Jr., of Ormond Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Eugene McCain, of Birmingham, Ala., cousin of the bride, was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids included Misses Zaida Clay, Frances Longino, Mesdames Alex Smith, Jr., Robert Haddock, Jr., and E. C. M. Waller, of Alexandria, Va. They were gowned alike in charming creations of champagne-colored taffeta, designed with square necklines, bouffant skirts which extended to form trains, and puffed sleeves. They wore autumn-tinted flowers in their hair and carried bouquets of burnt-orange cacti dahlias.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Rudolph John Thiesen, wore a handsome gown of tulle and white satin. It was fashioned with a Peter Pan collar embroidered in seed pearls, fitted bodices, long sleeves, and a billowy skirt which extended to form a train. Her filmy tulle veil was attached to a coronet of seed pearls with clusters of orange blossoms. Mrs. Reynolds carried white orchids and valley lilies.

MRS. THIESEN WEARS VELVET
For her daughter's marriage, Mrs. Thiesen wore an exquisite creation of shimmering velvet and a cluster of purple orchids. Mrs. Reynolds, the groom's mother, was lovely in light blue lace, the bodice of which was beaded in pearls. Her flowers were pale pink orchids.

A small reception followed at the home of the bride's parents on Inman Circle at which members of the wedding party, family and out-of-town guests were present. The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white blossoms and the wedding cake, frosted in sprays of valley lilies and white orchids, was surrounded by swansons and valley lilies. Autumn blossoms decorated the other rooms where the guests assembled. Mrs. Allen D.

MRS. HERBERT REYNOLDS, JR.

Smith and Mrs. Wistar Goodhue kept the bride's book. The bride's bridesmaids, by plane, for Mexico City, the latter traveling in a smart burgundy-colored wool suit, trimmed in bands of black Persian lamb, a black felt hat with black Persian lamb quills, black accessories, and a cluster of white orchids on her lapel. Upon their return, the couple will reside temporarily with the groom's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Reynolds, Sr., on The Prado.

Among the guests present from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. William Akers, Jr., of Ormond Beach, Fla.; Traylor Thiesen, of Camp Stoneham, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dunham, of Miami; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McCain, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregg, of Birmingham; Mrs. William Allen Putnam, of Cornwall, N. Y.; Mrs. E. C. M. Waller, of Alexandria, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Reynolds and Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Stephens, of Washington, Ga.; Mrs. Royston Cabanis, of Pensacola, Fla.; Mrs. Robert Spratt, of Charlotte, and Mrs. Hugh Van Deventer, Sr., of Knoxville, Tenn.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Shirley Davis To Take Job With Restoration Society

Tonight when the Streamliner rolls out of the Terminal Station, two college grads will be aboard, headed for historic Virginia. One is Betty Buntin (Mrs. Robert) Matthews, who returns to Charlottesville to rejoin her husband who is a student in the University of Virginia Law School. In the adjoining seat will be Shirley Powers Davis, who is returning to Williamsburg to be associated in the research department of the Rockefeller Restoration Society, specializing in the search for authentic paintings and etchings of the early Colonial period.

Together, the two girls will travel as far as Lynchburg, where Shirley will stop off for a visit with her Chi Omega Sorority mate, Emily Alexander, who attends Randolph-Macon. Later Shirley will continue on to Charlottesville, where she will join Betty and Bob. The trio, all graduates of the University of Virginia, will go to Williamsburg for homecoming on Saturday and to attend the V. M. I.-W. & M. football game.

Shirley, who graduated last June from the School of Government, was chosen for her new post because of her knowledge of the subject, and her achievements in the study and understanding of Colonial history and early American art. "Duchess," as she is affectionately known to her intimates, will be completely at home in the famous old city that is known throughout the world as the home of William and Mary College and for the restoration of the Colonial landmarks which was accomplished through the generous efforts of John D. Rockefeller Jr., Rockefeller Arch. "Duchess," while at Williams and Mary, Shirley served as President of Brown dormitory. She was on the Mortarboard, Student Council and a staff member of the college paper.

Betty and Bob graduated together three years ago, the former in chemistry and the latter in the preparation for the Navy. After serving as an officer in the Navy in the Pacific, Bob is resuming his studies at the University of Virginia. He and Betty have an apartment off the campus, but are having a grand social whirl with the college set. Betty has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Buntin, here. Shirley bids farewell to her pretty sister, Virginia, and to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Davis, until vacation time or until they pay her a visit in Virginia.

VIRGINIA WRIGHT CAPTIVATES NASHVILLE

Pretty Virginia Wright completely captivated Nashville society last weekend when she accompanied her fiancé, Hampton Hume, his mother, Mrs. Foster Hume, Jr.; his sister, Lorette, and his brother, Foster, III, to the Tennessee capital to be presented for the first time to Hampton's Nashville relatives and friends.

It was a gala visit, indeed. Hampton's charming grandmother, Mrs. E. L. Hampton, gave a family dinner for 18 on Saturday evening at the Bellemeade Country Club in Virginia's honor. Afterwards, the Atlantics attended the Saturday evening dinner-dance at the club, at which Virginia and Lorette were "belles of the ball."

KNIVES AT HOBBY SHOW

One of the many interesting and unusual collections to be displayed at the Hobby Show, which will feature the meeting of the Fourth District Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs to be held today at the Hettie Jane Dunaway Gardens near Newnan, is the collection of several hundred knives owned by Weyman Evans, of Newnan.

Mr. Evans first became interested in knives as a hobby when, as a small boy, he got his first 10-cent knife by trading a half dozen eggs which his mother had given him for doing some chores around the house, for a knife at the little country store. On the way home, it seems, he stopped and whetted the blade on the railroad track and got it sharp enough so that it would shave. Since that time he has always had a yen for good knives, and has been on the lookout for any odd or unusual ones, of high-grade workmanship.

In his collection are knives of various designs, sizes, and histories, which have been bought in almost all the States, Canada and Mexico. One of the most unusual is a long, handmade French knife of serpentine style which is 100 years old. The back and blade are hand-forged and the handle is out of cow horn. Then there is the J. A. Henckels' Twin Brand paring knife. It was worn on the belt of a German paratrooper, and can be used as a bayonet, an ax, a knife, a pincher, or even a razor.

There are numerous others, all with stories of their own, from the perfectly balanced steak knife to the lumberman's knife with a blade that forms almost a right angle.

This is just one of the interesting hobby collections to be on display at the World Friendship Hobby Show, to be held at Dunaway Gardens, under the sponsorship of the Newnan Woman's Club.

Schools of Instruction To Be Held This Week

Mrs. Knowles Davis, President of the E. Rivers PTA, will preside at a course of instruction given by Mrs. William W. Long Hospital. Mrs. Knowles is the former Miss Margaret Douglas Block, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. O'Beirne, and the baby's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Milner Benedict announce the birth of a son, on Oct. 9 at Piedmont Hospital, who has been named Christopher. The baby is the grandson of Mrs. A. E. McNabb, of Atlanta, and Mrs. S. R. Benedict, of Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley M. Vaught, 55 Lafayette Dr., N. E., announce the birth of a son, Stephen Wiley, Sept. 4, at Piedmont Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Kirk announce the birth of a daughter, Dorothy June, on Sept. 2, at the Archbold Memorial Hospital, Thomasville. Mrs. Kirk is the former Miss Mildred Singletary, daughter of Mrs. Laura Singletary and the late Mr. Singletary, of Thomasville. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Kirk, of Bremen.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Atcheson announce the birth of a daughter, Dorothy June, on Sept. 23 at St. Joseph's Infirmary. Mrs. Atcheson is the former Miss Betty Jane Middlebrook.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Taylor announce the birth of a son, Robert Edwin, at Crawford W. Long Hospital on Oct. 6.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harold Sibley announce the birth of a daughter, Susan Anne, on Oct. 5 at Emory University Hospital. The baby's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Sibley, of Luthersville, and her maternal grandparents are Judge and Mrs. Dave M. Parker, of Waycross and Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Wheeler announce the birth of a son, Michael Leo, on Sept. 28 at the Pahokee, Fla., Hospital. Mrs. Wheeler is the former Miss Ruth Kirk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Kirk, of Bremen. The paternal grandparents are Mrs. Ida Wheeler and the late Mr. Wheeler, of St. Petersburg, Fla.

PEO Chapter To Meet

Baruch Atom Control Held World Hope

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 (UP)—Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, head of the Manhattan Atomic Energy Project, said Wednesday night there was "no sounder plan for control of atomic energy than that of the United States which Bernard M. Baruch presented to the United Nations Commission."

Groves also told the National Safety Congress that there was no real defense against atomic bomb attack "except enforceable and enforced agreements not to have any bombs extant in the world." He said control of the atomic bomb was the world's greatest safety problem.

ACCEPTS AWARD
Groves accepted a Distinguished "Service to Safety" award on behalf of the "Safety Pioneers of the Atomic Age."

Street and highway safety experts, he said, followed a formula of "engineering, education and enforcement" to prevent automobile accidents.

"The same principles can be effectively applied to atomic energy control," he said. "The Baruch control plan employs these principles."

COUNCIL NEEDED
Groves said the world needs an International Safety Council "to prevent atomic war."

"You and I have gone to great lengths to prevent loss of life in industry, in homes and on highways," he said.

"Is it too much to ask that we apply our greatest efforts to prevent not only the loss of life, but the loss of all human values, in an atomic war?"

The award was presented to Groves because of safety measures on the Manhattan Project which have limited the number of accidents to only seven for every 2,000,000 man-hours worked. The national average of industrial accidents during the war years was about 13½ in the same period.

Church Moving Plans Under Way

Plans for relocation of the Capitol, New Presbyterian Church on 3rd at the southeast corner of Brewer Boulevard and Sylvan Road are being perfected by the congregation, Ernest Brewer, Chairman of the Building Committee, announced yesterday.

Although details have not been decided, indications are a new church seating from 500 to 600 persons and costing upwards of $100,000 will be projected.

Brewer emphasized that the new construction will await a more promising time and also will not be undertaken during the housing shortage.

Engine Assemblies Sale Is Announced

More than $100,000 worth of used automobile engine assemblies located at the Army General Depot, Conley, will go on sale beginning Monday at the Atlanta War Assets Administration Office, 699 Ponce de Leon Ave., Regional WAA Director H. L. Kennon has announced.

Assemblies require repairs, and those of Dodge manufacture predominate, Kennon said.

They may be inspected today through Friday from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. at Building 232, Old Salvage Yard, Army General Depot, Conley.

Democratic Breach Widens on Meat Row

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(UP)—Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan and top-ranking Administration officials met at the White House late Wednesday to discuss the politically explosive meat shortage, amid reports that at least two Cabinet members had split with President Truman over his handling of the situation.

The group met in the office of Reconstruction Director John R. Steelman. It was the third special meeting on the meat problem held there within a week, and emphasized the concern of Hannegan and others over the effects of the shortage upon Democratic Party's chances of retaining control of Congress in November.

Among those who participated in the conference were Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, OPA Administrator Paul Porter, William L. Clayton, Under-Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, Clark Clifford, Special Counsel to the President, Robert Shields, a member of Anderson's staff, and Richard H. Field, of Porter's staff.

Unusual political significance was attached to the meeting when it became known that Hannegan was called into the conference Wednesday for the first time—less than four weeks from the important off-year congressional elections.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters Hannegan was asked to attend to give "his impressions" gathered during a recent political speaking tour that took him to the West Coast.

The National Chairman previously had been asked by his Executive Committee to consult the Decontrol Board and other Government agencies in an effort to speed meat to family tables. Some committee members publicly advocated removal of meat price ceilings, but Hannegan said he had not been requested to seek decontrol.

Although high Democratic Party officials have been worried over the country-wide shortage, which Republicans have blamed on Administration bungling, Ross said Wednesday's conference was not of an "emergency nature," and that the President had not taken part in it.

Although the Steelman group plans to submit recommendations to Truman, it has not yet done so, Ross said, and there is no indication that it will do so in the immediate future.

"These men are simply serving as advisers," he said.

Asked whether Clayton's presence meant the possible discussion of imports of Argentine beef, Ross said he could not draw any inferences. The U. S. sanitary laws allow only importation of certain Argentine canned meats now. However, the Army is making a deal with Britain for Argentine beef for armed forces outside the United States.

Hannegan found himself at odds with Truman on the meat shortage issue soon after he made public the Executive Committee's resolution requesting him to look into it. The President told a press conference he was convinced the shortage was only temporary and that the public would get meat if it kept patient awhile. He indicated it was too bad if Hannegan held different views.

The national chairman planned to meet at 10 a. m. EST Thursday with representatives of the Meat Packers' Union (CIO) to discuss the problem.

Meanwhile, Sen. Claude Pepper, Democrat, Florida, who ranks prominently on Hannegan's list of speakers for the Democratic cause in the Fall campaign, took a toe-hold on the "decontrol meat" bandwagon.

Pepper made public his defection from the Administration's "hold-the-line policy," in a cautious statement which Washington observers interpreted as a trial balloon to test public sentiment.

His views were qualified carefully but they underscored the widening split within Democratic ranks over the political wisdom of trying to ride out the meat famine without touching OPA price controls.

Pepper, New Dealer and one of the Senate's most fiery champions of controlled prices, voted against the present Control Law on the contention it was unworkable.

In his statement Wednesday, he

The Southeast has a small but vital group of designers. As you would probably guess, they center about the capital city of the American tropics, Miami, and their creations are concerned with clothes for the sea and the sun. Last evening one of Miami's designers, Margaret Newman, presented her newest resort collection to buyers and the press at an impressive show at New York's Gotham Hotel. While lounging and beach clothes are her principal concern, Miss Newman's collection includes a group of cocktail dresses, suits and full-length dinner gowns. The "bare" look has almost disappeared from this current showing. Sleeves of all lengths, from a new cap sleeve, created by Miss Newman, to three-quarter and full tight sleeves, are featured. Invariably the waistline is well defined. Two resort costumes from Miss Newman's New York show are pictured. Left, a slacks ensemble features wide drop shoulders and an apron front. Right, purple and cyclamen bands relieve the stark whiteness of a pedal-pusher that has much wearability and charm.

WINIFRED WARE, Fashion Editor.

Were it not for the present quota many of our producers would be able to furnish it to Florida consumers," he said.

Pepper was echoed by two other Southern Democratic Senators, Burnet R. Maybank and Olin D. Johnston, both of South Carolina.

They said, after a conference with Truman, that people of the South are "quite discontented" with the current meat situation. They said they are strongly in favor of removing price ceilings.

Identities of the two dissenting Cabinet members were not divulged, but they have recommended that meat ceilings be lifted for an indefinite period, to induce reluctant cattlemen to start moving their stock to market.

They were said to have offered the President their plan as a substitute for the proposal made by House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack, Massachusetts, who advocated lifting controls for 60 days until after the November elections.

"Our people need the meat."

Dr. Brady

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Kindly send pamphlet or information on cysts. (C. R. J.)
Answer—A cyst is a pouch, sac or bladder-like formation containing fluid or semi-fluid material. For instance, a wen on scalp. Merely puncturing or opening and expressing or removing the contents is only temporary, for the lining of the sac continues to secrete the fluid and the cyst inevitably fills up again. The entire sac must be removed. I have no pamphlet—and anyway, who would pay the freight? Readers who hope for a reply by mail should inclose stamped, self-addressed envelope. The Ol' Doc is pretty mean about this. He offers his information, instruction or advice freely, but darned if he will prepay the freight on it.

SEXUAL PROBLEMS

Readers who have sexual problems or marital questions please take notice. Dr. Brady is unable to deal adequately with the numerous questions in that wide field. The best source of information, instruction and advice on such matters is The American Institute of Family Relations, 607 S. Hill Street, Los Angeles 14, Cal. The Institute publishes numerous excellent pamphlets which will give the authoritative information or advice most readers want. I have not seen all of these pamphlets but the few I have seen seem well suited for the purpose.

NO BURST

Is it possible for a twisted chronic appendix to burst at any time? (W. G. A.)

Answer—I don't know what twisted chronic appendix means. There is a such ailment as "chronic appendicitis"—that is a blind guess when the doctor doesn't know what ails the patient, if anything. As for bursting, of course anything is possible, except a mouse's nest—all right, all right, but tell me another metaphor that conveys the idea as well as a mouse's nest in the cat's ear.

HEAD NOISES

May I have your advice about head noises, please? My deafness is not so bad, but I can't seem to get used to constant ringing or buzzing. (C. W. J.)
Answer—Certainly—send a stamped self-addressed envelope and ask in writing for pamphlet on "Deafness and Tinnitus." The exercises described in the pamphlet, if meticulously followed out, may not only improve the hearing but relieve head noises, and in some instances the exercises have corrected snoring.

WHY WE SAY—By Stan J. Collins and L. J. Slawson

"PENKNIFE"

A small knife carried in the pocket is referred to as a penknife as our first writing pens were quills and these small knives were handy to cut a quill before using it as a pen.

ELIZABETH WOODWARD SAYS:

Fleeting Summer Romances So Much Cream and Fluff

Those boys you met on Summer vacation are driving you crazy. They pop into your dreams... their faces loom at you in a crowd... you hear their voices in empty rooms. Those boys you met and liked and left are haunting you like spooks.

You did have fun with them. For a few brief weeks your life revolved around them. They liked you too. Then you separated... and went your different ways. But the memory lingers on. Some of them write to you. From others you've heard nary a word. But the glow of them carries over... and dims the prospects of the boys you see around.

LOVELY FOR A LITTLE

You and a lot of the boys you meet are just ships that pass in the night. For a few days or weeks you happen to be in the same place at the same moment. You happen to like doing the same things... and you have time to do them together. Circumstances toss you into each other's arms. And it's great fun while it lasts. But a lot of those temporary friendships have no intention of becoming permanent alliances. They're episodes in your life that are complete and whole. No matter how many vague continued-inquiries strings were left hanging. Occasionally you meet a boy away from home... and he turns out to live around your corner. You just never laid eyes on him before, and he comes into your life on your vacation. There's every chance that you're going to keep bumping into him now that you've found each other.

But the lads who live miles away have their own lives to lead. They left girls behind them when they went on vacation. They'll go home and find new faces to interest them. They'll take with them pleasant memories of you. But they can't date a memory. They can't dance with a memory. And most of them have no intention of remaining true to a memory.

PART OF YOUR PAST

So there's no point in losing precious sleep over those casual pals. If you saw them on your own home ground, you might not like them at all. Surrounded as they were with the glamor of vacation, they seemed pretty special. If they were the only boys you met on vacation they were downright important. But how would they fit into your home setup? How would they stack up against the other boys you know? At a distance... and in your own imagination... they wear halos. The lads in your class don't seem nearly as exciting. So you remember those Summer date thrills... and you scorn the local lads who are eager to pay you some attention. You ask me how you can forget those boys you met. And I ask you right back... why should you? They're part of your past... they're people you've met. Don't try to forget them. Just don't count on them... that's all. And don't cut off your nose to spite your face. You can get your teeth into dates with the boys at home. Those fleeting Summer romances are so much whipped cream and fluff!

Miss Rebecca Butts

Weds Lendon Lowe

The marriage of Miss Rebecca Butts to Lendon C. Lowe was solemnized recently at the Oakland City Baptist Church. The Rev. W. M. Marshall, Jr., officiated.

The bride was attired in blue velvet, with accessories of navy. Her flowers were sunset roses and tuberoses.

Clarence Lowe was his brother's best man and Miss Martha Lowe was the bride's only attendant.

The couple left on a wedding trip and returned to reside in Atlanta.

8,035 Aided By Red Cross During Storm

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Oct. 9.—The American Red Cross Wednesday reported 8,035 persons were sheltered through its chapter facilities during the tropical hurricane.

Chapters in counties directly menaced by the storm operated 77 shelters and fed 4,625 evacuees. State Relations Officer James M. Jones said that 29 Duval County families were in need of clothing and furniture as a result of the blow and that five homes in Sarasota County were damaged.

Two beach houses in Lee County were damaged by high tides and storm winds. Jones added a survey of building damage still was in progress and would be made public as soon as results were tabulated.

He quoted citrus men as commenting that damage to the state's bumper fruit crop was "hardly as much as would have been caused by heavy rain or a thunderstorm." Meanwhile, the State Road Department reported storm damage to Florida's highway was "very, very light."

Groups Named At High School Press Meeting

The Atlanta High School Press Association, meeting at Central Night School, has named three committees to guide 1946-47 school activities.

Ann Brooke, of Napsomian School, was named chairman of the program committee. Appointed to serve with her were Harold Smith, West Fulton High; Dolly Walker, Girls High; Winfred Head, Fulton High; and Carolyn Enloe, Christ the King.

Richard Ashworth, of Tech High School, was made chairman of the Georgia Scholastic Press Association Committee. Other members are James Kinsley, Marist College; Robert Wiley, Tech High School; Tom Harrison, Georgia Military Academy; and Katrina Alford, Napsomian School.

Mignonne Bray, of Girls High, was appointed chairman of the Social Committee. On this committee are Bob Dees, Georgia Military Academy; Pat Bagwell, Christ the King; George Cochran, Marist College; and Nancy Anderson, Girls High.

Opal Kerby, of Central Night School, Association President, was in charge of the meeting. Richard Ashworth, of Tech High, spoke on the value of exchange columns in high school papers.

The Atlanta High School Press Association is sponsored by The Constitution.

Boy's Boogie Aids Chest Tour

The classical rendition brought forth plenty of "oh's" and "ah's" from the adult group, but as Lamar Savage, 9, started beating out a left-hand boogie, a group of Southern Railway employees visiting the Correll Moore Day Nursery Tuesday, couldn't resist keeping time.

The "pop" concert was an unrehearsed part of another Community Chest Red Feather tour to agencies supported by funds raised in the Chest's drive each Fall.

The group, which also contains visitors from several Federal agencies, later went to the Carrie Steele-Pitts home for Negro children, another Chest agency.

U. S. May Investigate Alleged Air Violations

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Civil Aeronautics Examiner T. L. Wrenn ruled Wednesday that the Department of Justice might inquire into possible anti-trust law violations in a proposed agreement by Pan American and Panagra Airways to interchange equipment on inter-continental routes.

The Justice Department raised the question Tuesday, after Panagra attempted to have Wrenn circumscribe the extent of questions being put to its President, Harold King, by counsel for Eastern Air Lines.

King, testifying for the third day, told the Examiner that he viewed Panagra Airways as "a threat to Panagra, because of its connections with National Airlines at Havana" and on grounds that it attempts "to skim the cream over the whole South American route (of Panagra), except at Santiago."

He said Panagra proposed to have all four-engine flights originating south of Lima proceed on to the United States from Balboa instead of passengers transferring to Pan American planes as is now required.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive

Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Overwork, undue worry, and lack of certain foods often reduce the red-blood strength—and starved, weak, puny blood just hasn't the power to keep up your energy and drive.

Every day—every hour—millions of red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that 888 Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the 888 Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, 888 Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organic, too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on 888 Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. 888 Tonic keeps Build Sturdy Healthy.

TWO JUDGES BUSY

Fulton Court Has Rush, 82 Get Divorces

The men and women seeking divorces required two judges to listen to their woes yesterday in Fulton Domestic Relations Court and the total list of what the elevator men called "the separation centers" was 82.

Clerk J. H. Bush said the extra judge would sit for the rest of the year. Illness had caused a bottleneck in the calendar, he added. All of yesterday's cases were uncontested. Presiding in the two courts were Judges Bond Almond and Virlyn Moore.

Irate Spouse Shot By Mother-in-Law After Family Row

With mother-in-law trouble in the form of a bullet wound in a shoulder, Robert Lee Davis, of 707 Melrose St. N. W., is in Grady Hospital. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Addie Bryson, of 3439 Bachelor Ave., Egan, was taken yesterday to Fulton Tower on a charge of assault with intent to murder in default of $3,000 bond.

According to Mrs. Bryson's statement to Capt. W. L. Duncan, of the Fulton County Police, there was no doubt about her intentions in regard to her son-in-law. She was quoted as saying:

"I intended to kill him. I hoped that I'd kill him this time, and if he is not dead now I hope he will die and he would never get a chance to beat her any more."

Mrs. Bryson was referring to her twice-married daughter, Thelma. L. J. W. Gilbert and Patrolman C. E. McWilliams reported they were called to Mrs. Bryson's residence by L. J. Saunders, a neighbor, who reported he had heard shots in that direction. They found Davis there with a 22-caliber rifle bullet wound and took him to Grady.

In her statement to Capt. Duncan, Mrs. Bryson said that Davis and two friends had called on her daughter, Thelma, who had sued him for a divorce. All had a few beers at a nearby barbecue place and returned to the Bryson home, she stated, when Davis began to upbraid and strike his wife. Mrs. Bryson then said she went into action with the rifle.

State Gets $2,239,669 In School Lunch Aid

By LORRAINE NELSON
Constitution Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—An agreement covering operation of the national school lunch program has been signed by the State of Georgia and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, it was announced Wednesday through the office of Sen. Russell.

Under the agreement, Georgia will receive $2,239,669.59 from the Federal Government to provide low-cost lunches to its school children during the present term. The State must match this with $1,431,624.13 of its own money.

Basis for this Federal-State money-matching plan was written into the National School Lunch Act by Sen. Russell, author of the legislation which, after its enactment by the seventy-ninth Congress, put the 10-year-old program on a permanent basis for the first time.

Prior to passage of the Russell measure, funds for the program had to be authorized and appropriated on a year-to-year basis. Now, Congress will have permanent authorization to appropriate any amount up to $80,000,000 a year to aid the endeavor.

While some states must match Federal contributions to its program on a dollar-for-dollar basis, Georgia's low per capita income, in relation to the rest of the country, lessens its share of the cost. With a per capita income in 1944 only 64 percent of the nation's average ($714 as against $1,117), Georgia, according to provisions of the Russell legislation, will be required in 1946 to match only 64 percent of the Federal school lunch money to which it is entitled.

A total of $1,855,159.95 of the Federal aid is earmarked under the act for the purchase of food. The remaining $384,509.64 is allocated in advance to the purchase of equipment and for development and expansion of the program. The State's share of the program is unfettered.

Due To Reject Nazi Mercy Pleas

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—(UP)—The Four-Power Allied Control Council, last hope of convicted Nuremberg defendants, probably will announce in a brief communique Thursday that all 16 Nazi appeals for clemency have been denied, two separate and reliable American sources agreed Wednesday.

These sources hinted strongly that the Council will uphold the verdicts of the Nuremberg Court, denying nearly all if not all appeals for mercy. A short communique to that effect is expected at 6 p. m., Berlin time (11 a. m., EST), Thursday.

Allied quarters also reported that Hermann Goering and Joachim von Ribbentrop asked to be shot instead of hanged.

DOG AND HER THREE PUPPIES RESCUED AFTER A FIVE-DAY SHUT-IN ORDEAL

A mother dog and her three brand-new puppies were much better last night, thank you, after a harrowing five-day imprisonment in a Boulevard apartment house without food or water. The canine family was rescued by L. J. Seegars, of the Atlanta Humane Society, after residents of the apartment house said they had heard the mother dog crying almost constantly since Friday.

Seegars entered the apartment through a window, fed the mother, then removed her and her offspring to more comfortable quarters. Police said the dogs' owner had been in jail.

Must be a pretty smart buy!

We know how great is the desire for new automobiles—how urgent the need for them in many cases.

And we're aware that nearly every make of car these days can point to a long waiting list of folks who have placed their orders.

But when a car hops instantly into "most wanted" position as this Buick did—

When week after week new orders out-pace stepped-up factory production—

Then we figure there must be something far beyond the expected in the car itself.

Something even bigger than standout style of the season—a big Fireball straight-eight power plant—the husky, roomy size of two fine-made tons.

What is it? Well, have you handled one of these cars yourself? Have you noticed the happy, almost-starry-eyed look of those who've got theirs?

Fact is—1946 Buick owners are our best salesmen, and the factory is working with might and main to keep up with the effects of their enthusiasm.

If your order isn't in, you can place it now, for delivery at OPA prices, with or without a car to trade in (though of course we need to get good cars for the used-car buyers on our waiting list).
